SAVE 2 TRAPPED IN PARACHUTE

Society Couple Up 125 Feet in Air Five Hours

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—A pleasure-seeking couple who dangled for five hours on a board seat 125 feet above ground at the World's Fair parachute jump were rescued at dawn today after two daring mechanics cut the jammed guide wire which held them captive.

J. CORNELIUS RATHBONE
Trapped for 5 Hours

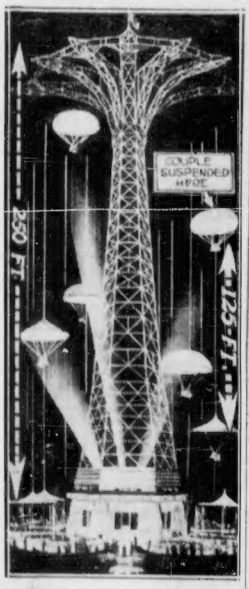

DIAGRAM shows position of parachute in which Mr. and Mrs. J. Cornelius Rathborne hung for five hours awaiting rescue.

The aerial prisoners were Mr. and Mrs. J. Cornelius Rathborne, socially-prominent couple of Old Westbury, Long Island.

Rathborne is captain of the U. S. junior championship polo team. His wife, the former Nancy Nelson Huidekoper of Ruxton, Md., was a Baltimore society belle before their marriage at Long Branch, Va., Nov. 23, 1935.

Their parachute, one of 11 in operation from the 250-foot tower, stuck at 10:25 p. m. last night.

They finally were rescued at 3:39 a. m., after mechanics attached a rope to the parachute, cut the jammed cable and lowered the chute a few feet at a time, on the three remaining cables, into a spread police net.

A crowd numbering in the thousands stayed up until dawn lightened the Eastern sky, then let loose a reverberating cheer as the man and woman were carried to an ambulance. They refused medical aid and drove away in their own car.

BUCKLES AT KNEES

The woman, who in the early hours of her plight shouted jests to the throng, wanted to walk away, but police picked her up. Rathborne, who said he was a polo player, buckled at the knees as his long ordeal ended. He is 32, Mrs. Rathborne 25.

Prolonged cheers also were the

CALLAHAN BLAST LAID TO COAKLEY

Governor Saltonstall charged at the Callahan ouster hearing today that a lengthy and acrid statement in criticism of conduct of the hearing, purporting to be made by Callahan, was sent out yesterday from the offices of Executive Councilor Daniel H. Coakley.

The statement, typewritten and worded to convey the impression that it was made by Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan, whose removal the governor seeks, was sent around to newspaper offices.

However, the Boston Evening American, questioning its authenticity, did not use it but instead checked with Callahan, who expressed surprise and then indignation that his name had been used.

Today, in a surprise move, the governor himself called Callahan to the witness stand at the hearing and, under oath, the commissioner was asked if he had sent out the statement.

Callahan replied that he had

Hail, Rain Hit North Shore; Salem Flooded

A lightning-streaked cloudburst hit the North Shore today, flooding streets in Salem and damaging crops in nearby sections with huge hailstones.

Only a tag end of the storm found its way to Boston, just in time to flash a few lightning bolts over the heads of lunch-hour crowds and spatter them with brief rain.

In Salem the downtown section was flooded with water pouring through many of the streets up to the hubs of automobiles.

Crops and greenhouses were damaged in some sections by hailstones, which covered the ground and heaped in drifts.

Because of the storm the State amateur golf championship was called off for the day at the Tedesco Country Club in Swampscott.

Report Big Spain Revolt

PARIS, July 12 (INS)—Travellers arriving at Hendaye on the Franco-Spanish frontier report that thousands of persons are in open rebellion against Generalissimo Francisco Franco in the Province of Asturias, the Paris newspaper Ce Soir stated today.

General Franco has sent his 62nd division to quell the insurrection, the paper reported. Serious trouble was also said to be rife in Catalonia.

113 DEGREES IN SPAIN

MADRID, July 12 (AP)—Cordoba reported 113 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade today in a heat wave that covered most of Spain. Hail storms damaged crops in Granada.

Duce Orders U.S. Women Out of Tyrol

ROME, July 12 (AP)—The Italian government disclosed today Premier Mussolini himself had ordered all foreigners cleared out of Bolzano province, in the Tyrolean area, as a "political and military" measure directed against anti-Fascism.

Two American women notified the United States embassy they had received orders to leave Bolzano within 48 hours, but representations by Ambassador William Phillips brought a promise of "every consideration" in their case.

Dorothea Watts of Newport, R. I., maintained that to leave on such short notice would endanger her mother's health. Giuseppe Bastianini, acting foreign minister, promised the Americans would have additional time for their departure.

Among Americans vacationing in Bolzano province were Graham H. Kemper, consul-general at Rome, and his wife and the wife and child of Major Jack C. Hodgson, assistant military and air attache of the Rome embassy. Presumably they also will be required to leave.

A communique said the action was taken in conjunction with the Ovra, Italy's Black Shirt organization, for the suppression of anti-Fascism, because of "the activity of some elements from western nations and residents in the province of Bolzano."

It was estimated at least 1000 were involved besides the 8000 Germans who are to be repatriated and the 150,000 German-Italians who may choose between the two countries.

FATHER DIVINE STRUTS AMONG HIS FLOCK
He Seems To Be Heading Toward New 'Heaven'

(Copyright, 1939, by New England Newspaper Publishing Company)

NEWPORT, July 12—In the face of a threatened invasion of this super-exclusive summer resort by 1000 followers of Father Divine, Mayor Henry S. Wheeler took "steps" today.

First he summoned City Solicitor Jeremiah A. Sullivan into City Hall to see what the zoning laws had to say about the section in which Mrs. Angela C. Kaufman "proposes to establish a Negro colony.

"I intend to enforce the law," he said. "And the people who would suffer from the colony Mrs. Kaufman intends to establish are not the ones she specifies."

The abutting properites to the present Kaufman estate — now named "The Castle"—are persons of medium income, retired workers, naval officers who have leased houses and others of fair incomes, he said.

SUSPECTS BLUFF

"Furthermore," continued the mayor, "I think it's all a bluff on the part of a woman, who after all, is only an outsider."

"She came in here last January and found out all about the situation, even before she bought the place.

"She even knew that the residents in this section were year-around people, and year-around people don't want a drinking place down at the corner of their street.

"If Father Divine, or anyone else comes into this city with the idea of having a hotel and bar in the center of a section that is strictly residential, it seems to be a mistaken idea.

"Mrs. Kaufman was told, even before she started this thing, that the neighbors would object. They did. It couldn't have been any surprise to her.

"The phrase that somebody used—'spite fence'—certainly seems to apply.

"Mrs. Kaufman had been turned down twice on her application for a liquor license before she took this means of publicizing herself. We intend to fight it through."

Meanwhile neighbors of the embattled woman who intends (she says) to rival the Hudson river as a Negro summer colony, was still abed with the indisposition that floored her yesterday after her ultimatum to the city fathers.

This was served in the form of telegrams exchanged between herself and the "god" of Harlem—Father Divine. In one dispatch Mrs. Kaufman invited the "reverend" to take over the house she had made over into a hotel and

Wife of 7 Back Here In Jail

Mrs. Lillian Gamble—she also has borne the names Monder, Stanley, Brower, Douglas, Mudgett, and two others she can't remember offhand—was released from jail in New York today, but only to be returned to Women's Reformatory at Sherborn.

Only 26 at that time, but already six times a bride and with never a divorce, lovelorn Lillian escaped from Sherborn in April, 1937, to where she had been sentenced from Springfield for marrying four men in two months.

Hardly had she gained this freedom than she married a seventh time, she admitted the following October when she was arrested at Mamaroneck, N. Y., charged with forging and cashing worthless checks.*

The blonde allegedly had obtained hundreds of dollars of wearing ap-

F. D.'s Mother 'Thinks He May Run Again'

LE HAVRE, France, July 12 (INS)—President Roosevelt might run for a third term "if his friends press him," Mrs. James Roosevelt, the chief executive's mother, declared on her arrival here today.

"Physically, he is capable of so doing," she said. "I don't think he really knows what he may do.

"No one knows what may happen two years from now. If his friends press him, I think he may run again."

1st Lady's Column Daily in American

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, joins the writing staff of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, beginning Sunday.

ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

Her intimate, newsy column, "My Day," will appear daily in the Boston Evening American and weekly in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Not only throughout the United States, but throughout the world as well, public interest has become general in the amazingly frank day by day "diary" of the First Lady of the nation.

The Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser are pleased to be able to present EXCLUSIVELY in Boston Mrs. Roosevelt's comments on life as she sees it in this era of stress, uncertainty and change.

The First Lady's opinions as expressed in her column, will of course represent only her personal views, not the editorial policy of the Hearst newspapers.

An ardent defender of the rights of women in business and in public affairs, Mrs. Roosevelt also writes as a mother, wife and home-maker. In her Sunday column, she will discuss the problem of teaching children to do useful work without "regimentation."

N. H. COP HEARS SHOT, FINDS WIFE, 35, DYING

CONCORD, N. H., July 12—With a bullet wound in her breast and a .33-caliber revolver by her side, Mrs. Marion Arsenault, 35, was found near death by her husband, Patrolman Nelson Arsenault, when he came home from duty last night.

At Margaret Pillsbury Hospital, Patrolman James Cerriello gave blood for a transfusion.*

According to Patrolman Arsenault, he heard a shot as he approached his home.

Hurrying in, he said he found Mrs. Arsenault bleeding and semi-conscious.

She had been ill several months, the husband said.

Paul Curley, Dancer Wife Reunited

Paul Curley, son of the ex-governor, and his wife, Lillian Duval, former dancer on Broadway, were enjoying a sort of second honeymoon today at the Curley home in Jamaicaway.

Paul Curley

They had been living apart all winter, after a whirlwind courtship and sudden marriage that seemed to promise permanent domestic bliss.

A telephone call to their honeymoon nest was answered by Lillian.

"Yes," she said, "I'm back. I returned last Thursday."

Paul was reluctant to discuss the reconciliation except to say that "everything is fine. Just fine."

Intimates were not surprised over the reunion. Despite the separation it was known that the couple are very much in love.

The Curleys separated last February when Lillian went to Miami accompanied by Paul's sister, Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelly.

Shortly after her arrival at the fashionable winter playground rumor drifted north that she was seeking a legal separation.

These rumors Paul at first indignantly denied, but later ruefully declared:

"I'm not surprised. But I hope it never happens because she's a swell kid."

Since her return north Paul visited New York weekly to see her and kept the long-distance telephone operators busy between visits.

Two weeks ago he confided to friends:

"Everything is swell. I'm going over to New York, and I'm going to bring Lillian back with me."

He did go over to New York. He did bring Lillian back with him.

Hunt Girl in WPA Check Theft Racket

A pretty brunette in her twenties who has cashed several hundred dollars worth of forged WPA checks as "front" for a check stealing racket was sought today by Lynn police and federal men under the supervision of Postal Inspector Thomas J. Rice.

The woman, according to post office authorities, disarms suspicion by offering the checks as payment for baby food, receiving change. She is well dressed, usually wearing a blue dress and a light sailor hat.

FOLLOWS CARRIERS

Behind the racket, the inspectors said, is a man who follows mail carriers about, stealing the checks from mail boxes.

Apartment house tenants and roomers who have missed their checks from open mail boxes have reported seeing a suspicious looking man lurking in the vicinity at mail delivery times.

The gang has been particularly active around Rockaway street, Central avenue, Liberty street, Hayden road, and Washington street, according to authorities.

One of its victims reporting loss of her pay check was Miss Eva Pearl of Washington street, who told postal inspectors her check had been snatched apparently within a few minutes after its delivery.

WOMAN KEY FIGURE

The gang is apparently composed of specialists, according to investigators. One man steals the checks, then turns them over to another, who forges the necessary endorsement.

Key figure is the woman. A watch has been set for her by postal inspectors in chain grocery stores and other establishments where a practice is made of cashing WPA pay slips.

With assistant U. S. Attorney Arthur J. B. Cartier in charge of the investigation, Inspector Rice said he expects within a few days to round up the entire gang, one of several which has operated in a similar manner in the Eastern Massachusetts area.

Nurse, Broker Get Waiver to Wed at Once

Heaven couldn't wait for Dunbar Abell, broker, and Vivian C. Mickel, a nurse, who today obtained a quick waiver to the five-day marriage clause, and at last reports were seeking a minister to tie the knot—but quick!

To the mythical tinkle of the Sunrise Serenade they were at the City Hall bright and early to climb the stairway to the stars, which, of course, took them to the marriage license bureau.

There Abell identified himself, said he is 28, lives in Newbury street, and was born in East Orange, N. J., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Abell.

The bride-to-be said she is 23, lives in Thomas street, Caldwell, N. J.

Hurrying over to the east side of heaven, they got Judge Elijah Adlow to sign the waiver, after a little wishing. They did not say who was to perform the ceremony, or where. Both were very happy—

6 IN COURT AS LYNN WARS ON HORSE BETS

Opening a concentrated drive on horse betting in Lynn, police came into Lynn district court today with six men seized in the first raid of the campaign.

At the same time, Police Chief Edward D. Callahan announced that the drive will continue "until this type of gambling is entirely wiped out in Lynn."

"Lynn police will not tolerate gambling in this city," he declared. "Lynn must be cleaned up and rid of these petty establishments."

In court as the principal defendant was Walter Guptil, Jr., 37, of Seminole ave., Saugus, who pleaded guilty to charges of maintaining a gambling establishment and paid a $100 fine.

Five other men pleaded guilty to charges of being present where bets were being registered and were fined $5 each by Judge John J. Foley. They were George Nye, 30; Leon Adams, 29; Harry Brown, Jacob Ehmann and Herbert Need, 31. All gave Liberty street addresses.

Prepare Death Trap For Slayer Long

CONCORD, N. H., July 12—Workmen today started the macabre task of equipping a grim little room in State Prison with three control buttons, on which three officers will step early Friday morning, to spring the death trap for Howard Long, convicted child killer.

Only one button actually will function and open the gallows platform. The other two will be disconnected.

But never will Sheriff Frederick Elliott of Laconia or his two assistants, Deputies Alfred Cooley and Homer Crockett, know which of the trigger-buttons sent the Massachusetts man to his doom.

FIRST IN 21 YEARS

Extreme care marked all preparations for Long's hanging, because it will be the first in New Hampshire since the execution of Frederic I. Small of Ossipee 21 years ago.

On that stark January day in 1918, the rope stretched, the doomed man landed on the floor beneath the platform, and Small had to be hanged a second time.

Since then a distrust—almost a superstition—has developed regarding the State Prison gallows and throughout the Granite State vigorous opposition to the extreme capital punishment has grown.

The worker who disconnects two of the death trap triggers will be sworn to secrecy. So also will be the 12 witnesses to the hanging. Even their names are secret.

LONG NONCHALANT

Long himself showed little interest in what awaits him, spoke only a few words when officially notified he must die Friday.

"I'll hold my head up high and bear no malice," was his only comment, Atty. John F. Hurley of Manchester, his counsel, declared after the interview.

Hurley had deliberately withheld the dread tidings as long as possible, in hope that some appeal might save him.

Hurley stated he will discuss Long's burial wishes with him just prior to the execution. Judge Arthur P. Stone of Cambridge District Court, trustee of the estate of Long's mother, who died while he was serving time at Bridgewater for a sex crime, notified Hurley today he will pay for the burial.

DISNEY, Okla., July 12 (AP)—This Grand River Dam boomtown still wants its fun free and easy and its "dictator" pulchritudinous.

Alice, former night club hostess, defeated Billy Baker, ex-cowgirl who won last year on a song-and-dance ticket.

CLUJ, Rumania, July 12 (AP)—Three military planes collided in midair today and the three pilots were killed. The accident was attributed to poor visibility.

Green Light For McNutt?

WASHINGTON, July 12 (INS)—Conflicting political emotions stirred Washington today as Democratic party wheelhorses wondered whether President Roosevelt was paving the way for a third-term try or whether he was giving a "green light" to the 1940 candidacy of Paul V. McNutt, newly-appointed Federal Security Administrator.

Unquestionably, some dozen "charming young men"—including McNutt and various members of the Roosevelt cabinet—were weighing carefully today the President's press conference assertion that none of them were running for office. The executive added that no one could help what one's friends did for one.

Many quarters interpreted the President's casual dismissal of the active candidacy of any man in the Democratic party as a move to clear the road for his own third term bid.

Senator Van Nuys (D.) of Indiana said:

"I think the President has given McNutt the green light for 1940."

Accuse Malden Man Of $28,000 Theft

William S. Dana, 39, of Bainbridge street, Malden, a Devonshire street stock salesman, was arrested today by Police Captain John A. Dorsey, attached to the attorney general's office, on an indictment charge of larceny.

The indictment, returned Monday, charges Dana mulcted Mrs. Lina E. Hobbs, 70-year-old Medford widow, out of $28,000 through stock transactions in which he was her agent.

According to Captain Dorsey, the salesman denied any thefts, but said:

"I owe her about $18,000."

The widow claims her actual loss through the stock transactions and Dana's collection of some of her rents is approximately $68,000, according to Captain Dorsey.

She charges that while she was confined by illness to a convalescent home in Maine, Dana secured her signature to trade with her stocks.

At that time she was seriously ill and did not realize what she was doing, she claims.

It is charged by the widow that Dana took advantage of the circumstances and her condition, manipulated the stocks to his own benefit and also converted to his own use $1320 he collected as rents on some Huntington avenue apartment property.

THIS LITTLE PICKET WENT HOME—Violent disorder broke out at the Pontiac, Mich., Fisher Body plant when police attempted to escort workers through picket lines into the struck factory. Strikers attacked workers' cars, police went into action, with dire results for picket in grasp of two huskies.

ARMED TROOPERS ARRIVE TO QUELL MOTOR STRIKE

PONTIAC, Mich., July 12 (AP)—State police moved into Pontiac today for General Motors strike duty amid threats from the United Auto Workers Union (CIO) that a city-wide strike might be called because of the "interference."

The trouble spot was the Pontiac plant of Fisher Body Company, scene of violence Monday and Tuesday when non-striking employes attempted to get through the picket line. Several persons were injured.

State police officials were reluctant to discuss their plans, but it was understood that 120 troopers had been assembled in and near Pontiac. They kept out of sight, in line with their policy of making no show of strength until called upon by local officials for help.

It was reported that the troopers were equipped with gas bombs and nightsticks.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Pontiac City Commission, Robert Poe, president of the Pontiac Industrial Council (CIO), declared a general walkout might be called if the state police were used as "strike breakers." He said:

"Unless something is done quickly the whole city may be tied up. We are trying to confine the strike to Fisher Body and to keep it from spreading."

The commission indicated it was helpless in view of Governor Luren D. Dickinson's orders to the state police Tuesday. The governor said he was displeased with the handling of the strike by Pontiac police.

At a union meeting last night in Detroit, Walter Reuther, head of the UAW-CIO General Motors division, said reinforcements would be sent from Detroit to Pontiac to maintain the picket line.

Under the provisions of the new state riot act three armed persons or 30 unarmed persons can be considered a mob and can be called upon by officers of the law to assist in dispersing the others.

One Killed, 8 Others Shot in Harlan Riots

HARLAN, Ky., July 12 (INS)—One picket was shot and killed and a captain of the Kentucky national guard was seriously wounded today in a pitched gun battle between militiamen and pickets at the Mahan-Ellison Coal Corporation mine at nearby Stanfill.

The battle was precipitated, National Guard officers reported, when pickets opened fire on militiamen as they escorted a group of non-striking miners to the pit for work.

Guardsmen immediately returned the fire.

Five miners and two guardsmen fell wounded. One miner and one militiaman were seriously wounded, and five of the wounded were rushed to a Harlan hospital.

George Titler, secretary of the striking United Mine Workers' Union in the Harlan district, was jailed by guardsmen following the shooting. Titler was held without charge.

National Guard reinforcements were rushed to nearby Stanfill immediately following the shooting.

Two more persons were shot, in addition to the seven casualties in the Stanfill battle, later during an altercation on the streets of Harlan as troops were making wholesale arrests of strike sympathizers and demonstrators.

Two Subs Aid Squalus Lifting

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 12 (AP) — Two R-class submarines from the New London, Conn., base arrived at the navy yard today to assist in raising the sunken submarine Squalus, tomb of 26 men who perished when the fighting craft went down, 15 miles off the coast, May 23.

A heavy ocean swell caused temporary suspension of salvage operations.

Despite the temporary delay, naval officials said they hoped to get two remaining pontoons attached to the Squalus' bow this afternoon.

PICKET MEETING OF WPA HEADS

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Pickets marched in a double line today along the Michigan boulevard side of the Stevens Hotel where Colonel Francis C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, called a two-day conference with his state directors.

The block-long demonstration was orderly. Police Chief James L. Kerr sent 35 officers to patrol the building. Ten reserve policemen also were sent to four district police stations along the route from points where the pickets met to the hotel.

Signs carried by the pickets read:

"70,000 WPA workers face starvation by 30-day layoff."

"We want those promised jobs, F. D. R."

"Forward with Roosevelt. Stop tory attacks on WPA."

"Relief for all WPA strikers."

"We demand reinstatement of the Federal Theater."

Directors from 48 states and Hawaii, nine regional directors and six of Harrington's Washington staff were present as the meeting began.

AFL Chief Green Puts Strike Onus on Congress

WASHINGTON, July 12 (INS)—The American Federation of Labor, through its president, William Green, today disclaimed responsibility for the wave of WPA strikes which have swept the country.

With more than 77,000 WPA workers striking in protest against the new 1939-1940 relief act which decreed that skilled workers must labor longer hours, Green opened a "protest meeting" of high federation officials in Washington with the statement:

"The strikes have been spontaneous in character. They have never been ordered by the A. F. of L. because we fully recognize the fact that the remedy lies with Congress rather than through strikes on WPA projects."

Green told the special meeting of A. F. of L. executives, which he called to consider the WPA crisis, that scrapping of the prevailing wage for a security wage under the new relief act was an "injustice" and pledged the federation "to do all that lies within our power" to restore the wage clause.

STATE WPA DIRECTOR AT CHICAGO PARLEYS

Colonel John J. McDonough, regional director and state administrator of WPA, today attended a preliminary conference in Chicago of relief officials, called to study the new relief act and the protest strikes resulting from its passage.

In Massachusetts, the threatened walkout of skilled workers was held up, pending a meeting in the Hotel Westminster Saturday of delegates from craft unions.

Remodeling work in Boston's City Hall may be stopped, officials feared, if union workmen leave their jobs.

Snow removal machines were called into use on the $5,000,000 Huntington avenue subway project, where cranes and power shovels were left idle by the walkout of hoisting engineers.

DR. MILES REPLACES REARDON

After seven years as medical examiner in the Middlesex County second district, Dr. John Paul Reardon of Somerville was shelved today by Governor Saltonstall in favor of Dr. G. Stanley Miles of Chester street, Somerville.

The nominee is head surgeon at Somerville Hospital.

Lewis R. Hovey, whose appointment was criticized by the Congress for Industrial Organization, wasc onfirmed unanimously as associate labor commisioner and employers' representative on the state board of arbitration and conciliation.

Other appointments made by Governor Saltonstall today and sent to the council were of the following:

Frederick W. Lawson of Fall River, to be chairman of the Fall River police board in place of Simon S. Sullivan.

Evelyn Byng of Medfield, to be trustee of Medfield State Hospital, in the post vacated by the death of Eva Watson.

Roland E. Derby, Tyngsboro; Stephen Gleason, Lowell; Ulysses J. Lutpen, Chelmsford, and Harold F. Farnsworth, Winchester, as trustees, Lowell Textile Institute.

Reappointments by the governor were those of Dorothy Kirchwey Brown of Boston and Frank L. Boyden of Deerfield, as trustees of the Massachusetts training schools; Theodore L. Storer of Cambridge as commissioner of the Massachusetts nautical school, and Thomas B. Alexander of Scituate as associate medical examiner of the fifth Plymouth district.

An appointment which does not go through the council was that of Fred W. Steel of New Bedford as a member of the Unemployment Compensation Commission advisory council, replacing William Ormsbee of Taunton, resigned.

These appointments were unanimously confirmed. Edward J. Wall, Melrose, advisory board, commission for blind, Thomas A. Pappas, Belmont, Boston Port Authority, Richard Parkhurst, Winchester, Boston Port Authority, Stacy V. Southworth, Braintree, Free Public Library Board, and Margaret Herrick, Boston, trustee Massachusetts Training Schools.

Roosevelt to Press His Neutrality Fight

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt soon may send a special message to Congress, well-informed senators said today, backing up his appeals for neutrality legislation at this session.

At the White House it was said the President was exploring a variety of methods by which he might press his neutrality fight.

He was reported to have told aides it was still too soon to say whether he would send a statement to the Capitol or take some other action.

The chief executive told reporters yesterday that if a foreign war should break out before the present law was revised, Congress would find it extremely difficult to take such action. He spoke shortly after the Senate foreign relations committee voted 12 to 11 to defer the neutrality problem.

In making it clear that the administration would continue to push for immediate consideration, Roosevelt endorsed the six-point peace program advocated by Secretary Hull earlier in the day.

This program would retain the munitions board, bar American ships from combat zones, restrict travel of Americans in such zones, require transfer of title on goods sold to belligerents before shipment, continue restrictions on loans and credits to warring nations, and regulate collection of funds for belligerents.

Thus it would abandon the present arms embargo, which the House recently voted to retain in modified form.

German Press Gleeful At Neutrality Shelving

BERLIN, July 12 (AP)—The official German reaction to the United States Senate's postponement of any revision in neutrality legislation was that "it does not concern us," but there were indications that the step was received with satisfaction.

The Fremdenblatt of Hamburg headlined the story, "Hard Defeat for President Roosevelt—War Participation Bill Postponed," and the Zwoelf Uhr Blatt of Berlin, "A Hard Blow Against Roosevelt—His Neutrality Revision Postponed until 1940."

BARE DATA COLLECTED ON 'REDS'

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12 (AP)—Defense attorneys at Harry Bridges' deportation hearing asked today that Laurence Milner, retired Oregon National Guard major, procompiled in his probe of alleged radical activities in the Pacific Northwest.

These reports, contended Richard Gladstein, attorney for the West Coast CIO director, contain material which would be "impeachment of the witness out of his own mouth".

Milner, who has termed Bridges a "very able member of the Communist party" said he had 77 separate reports relating to Bridges, gathered while working as a National Guard undercover agent.

The former officer went on the witness stand today for the third time in the three-day-old hearing, at the Angel Island immigration station in San Francisco Bay, for more quizzing about his asserted knowledge that Bridges paid dues to the Communist party, sat in with leaders of the Communist "inner circle" and was helping carry out a revolutionary program by fomenting labor trouble on Pacific coast waterfronts.

The government charges the Australian-born longshoremen's union leader should be deported because he belonged to an organization which advocated forceful overthow of the government. Bridges has denied any connection with the Communist party.

Thomas Shoemaker, chief deputy U. S. commissioner of immigration, here from Washington to conduct the hearing for the Labor Department, opposed vigorously the defense request that Milner's reports be brought to the hearing.

FACES DEPORTATION—With all appeals to the Department of Labor in vain, Mrs. Madeline Vera Bucholz, Bell, Cal., mother of eight children, faces deportation to Canada. Mrs. Bucholz is shown sewing while her children gather around her.

International News Photograph Service

MOTHER OF 8 LOSES DEPORT FIGHT

LOS ANGELES, July 12—"I broke no law. I have been a good wife and a good mother. And now they want to tear me from my children and banish me from my home!"

With this anguished cry on her lips, Mrs. Madeline Vera Bucholz today received the Department of Labor's ruling that she shall be deported to Canada, wrested by sternly literal interpretation of the law from her husband and her eight children, one only a year old.

Following quickly upon the severing of the family of John F. McNeil, Canadian war veteran, in a similar pathetic case, Mrs. Bucholz' plight has aroused a storm of protest among friends, neighbors and American Legion comrades of her husband, Fred Bucholz, who fought for the United States in the World War.

SCORES SEC. PERKINS

Revealing that he had made repeated attempts to save Mrs. Bucholz from deportation, her attorney, J. Edward Keating, was bitter in his criticism of the Secretary of Labor, Mme. Frances Perkins.

"The present policy," Keating declared, "is a matter of direction by Madame Secretary Perkins. Secretary Perkins should rightfully be referred to as 'Mad Fanny.' She got herself messed up with Congress and as a result was called on the carpet and spanked.

"And in January last she began the ruthless policy of a literal application of every technicality of the immigration law, disregarding the policy of not separating families, which has been a traditional policy of the Department of Labor for 18 years."

District Director of Immigration Walter E. Carr said the only ray of hope for Mrs. Bucholz is that the Canadian government will refuse the United States immigration authorities' request to deport her.

HAS ONLY ONE HOPE

"And it is extremely likely our request will be denied," Carr added.

Carr took occasion to defend his chief, Secretary of Labor Perkins.

"I know Madame Perkins personally," he declared, "and I know that the mere thought of separating a mother from her family on a technical charge of illegal entry is abhorrent to her.

"But it was her very practice of attempting to delay deportation in 'hardship cases' such as the Bucholz case that led to an attempt to impeach her and caused Congress to compel her to enforce the law in its every particular."

Bucholz was born in Cheney, Washington. During the war he served with a combat organization, the 8th infantry. He was honorably discharged from the Army after his service overseas.

Unable to find work here, he went to Canada. There he met and married Madeline, a French-Canadian girl. Six of their children were born there—but the children are, of course, American because of their father's citizenship.

In 1932, the Bucholz family came to the United States. Mrs. Bucholz was given only a "temporary" permit. It is that technicality that has resulted in the deportation order.

Philippines' Richest Man Shot to Death

MANILA, July 12 (INS)—Three prominent commonwealth citizens, including Joe De Leon, world's wealthiest Filipino, were shot to death today in an outbreak of a long standing feud between sugar mill operators and planters.

The other victims were Augusto Gonzales, brother of the president of the University of the Philippines, and Captain Julian Olivas, constabulary provincial inspector.

Time Will Tell
Where—and How—
You Bought Your Furniture

If furniture were all alike, and STORES were all alike, it would be a simple matter for any buyer to find out where the lowest prices were to be had, and buy accordingly.

There is, however, as much difference in furniture, and in the stores that sell it, as there is in the people who buy it. In choosing furniture, you are (or SHOULD be) choosing a Life Companion . . . so there is far MORE to consider than merely "how much."

The REPUTATION of a store is extremely important. The character of the merchandise it carries is of the greatest importance. The knowledge of the men who serve the buying public is perhaps most important of all.

I am interested primarily in having my stores known as SAFE places in which to trade: In it must be only merchandise of a quality that CAN be GUARANTEED—because everything Kane's sell IS fully guaranteed. The men on our floors must be able to be HELPFUL in matters of planning both furnishings and budgets.

We are equipped, both in merchandise and personnel, to serve you as you LIKE to be served—and we wouldn't be in business if we weren't able to SHOW you how to have a BETTER furnished home for LESS money.

PARIS, July 12 (INS)—War over Danzig may possibly be avoided on the basis of new Anglo-French-Italian details of which International News Service learned today.

For the first time since Chancellor Hitler tore up the Polish-German nonaggression pact in his Reichstag speech, before the Reichstag on April 28, there appears to be a definite bond of light on a horizon otherwise dark with universal anxiety that this summer might bring war.

The chief hope comes from two elements. The resolution, to use force to resist if necessary, and the desire to conciliate, if possible.

I understand that a plan is now in the making or will be made soon to Hitler to try to induce him to choose negotiation instead of war. The inducement will be the following basis for negotiating:

Danzig to remain an independent city.

Danzig's independence to be guaranteed by Germany and Poland.

Danzig not to be fortified nor occupied by the German regular army.

Poles and Germans to receive equal treatment in Danzig.

Danzig to remain in the Polish customs area.

The League of Nations commissioner to be eliminated, and Danzig to be divorced entirely from the League.

Danzig's constitution to be revised to suit the population.

Poland to relinquish control of Danzig's foreign relations.

Polish control of Danzig's post offices, railway and port will be discussed.

Britain Pours More Millions Into Defense

LONDON, July 12 (INS)—Great Britain, carrying on the offensive in Europe's "war of nerves" by delivering a daily shock to the totalitarian powers, today announced that $350,000,000 more were being thrown into her war chest for the army. Supplementary army estimates revealed that Britain in this year will have an army of at least 964,000 men.

This mighty land fighting force will be made up of 338,000 in the regular army and regular army reserve, 130,000 militiamen and 485,000 territorials (similar to American national guardsmen).

The additional estimates bring to a grand total of about $1,550,000,000 the army estimates for the current fiscal year, and still more supplementary estimates are expected.

So successful was the mass flight of 120 British bombers to Rome at dusk yesterday that the government is considering a similar excursion to Poland to aid conciliation by the Polish British alliance.

'Speed Troops' New Nazi Unit

BERLIN, July 12 (AP)—The German army will have a new unit to be known as "fast troops," it was announced by Sept. 19 issue of an order-sheet by Col.-Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, chief of staff of the army, published today.

The new unit will include motorized infantry, cavalry, armored troops, [illegible] and motorized [illegible] service troops.

Nazi Munitions Flow to Danzig

WARSAW, July 12 (AP)—The Polish press published news of parts today of a flow of war munitions from Germany into Danzig. The movement was described as "continuous."

The newspaper Polonsky Pasek declared Polish "the only difference that can be noticed now is that the militarization of Danzig is proceeding more secretly than before."

MIDWEST SEES FALL OF METEOR

CLEVELAND, July 12 (AP)—A huge meteor blazed a flaming trail visible over North Central [illegible] and extreme Southern Canada tonight.

The streak of light extended from the zenith to the horizon and [illegible] almost due north over Lake Erie.

Its landing place was unreported. Many witnesses and authorities believed it may have come down over Lake Erie or Canada. Some Canadian observers thought it fell in Lake St. Clair.

Some authorities said its final burst of flame may have occurred and consumed it before it reached earth.

Thousands of persons saw the phenomenon about 9:45 p. m. (EDT) in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania and Ontario. Newspapers' telephones were jammed with calls for information.

Michigan and Canadian witnesses said they heard an accompanying rumbling noise. There were reports of fragments falling in the St. Clair river and another in Toledo but nothing was found.

The blazing streak was visible over the Lake Huron shore as far north as Onway at the tip of Michigan's lower peninsula.

2 DARING MECHANICS SAVE 'CHUTE VICTIMS

reward of two daring mechanics, H[illegible] Mitchell and William Gertis, who performed impromptu human-fly stunts in attempting to free the corner of the parachute. Gertis, a former mail carrier, rode the 'chute to earth when it finally was freed.

He praised the courage of the two passengers.

"Both were perfectly okay at all times," Gertis grinned.

Mitchell, a one-time steeplejack, said Mrs. Rathborne had been "swell."

"She got a little jumpy at times, but most of the time she kidded me."

"Stop worrying," Mrs. Rathborne chided Harold E. Talbott, a friend, who went up in an adjoining parachute to reassure them.

"Why do you want to come up?" she asked. "Two of us stuck up here is enough."

"I could use a cup of coffee," she added.

"So could I," said her husband.

Rathborne, a banker, went to business as usual after five hours sleep.

"I'm feeling fine now, thank you," he said, starting for his office, "but we were damned glad to get down again.

"The third or fourth hour up there was the worst. Boy, by that time we were getting really worried.

"We didn't do an awful lot of talking while we were up there. For one thing we were away over at an angle, and the belt was very tight.

"We were tilted over to the left, and I was on that side, with my wife's weight pressing down on me. We were continually trying to get the seat straighter."

"We were not a bit anxious after they brought the life net."

He said his wife "wasn't much scared."

"She was wonderful, very courageous," he added.

"We got home about 5:30 and didn't waste much time getting to sleep."

The parachute jump was devised in 1934 by Commander James H. Strong for training fliers in the basic principles of jumping.

HOISTED TO TOP

An electric motor is used to hoist the captive parachute to the top of a 250-foot tower, which has a bell-shaped crown, so the 'chute can fall free.

The parachute apparently jammed against one of the four cables which keep it spread. The motor operating the hoisting gear then jammed also, and it became impossible to lower or raise the stranded couple.

Scores of police and firemen were summoned and a 100-foot fire department ladder was hoisted in a futile attempt to reach the trapped chute.

The crowd [illegible] cheered as Mitchell [illegible] to the top of [illegible] and again cheered [illegible] lowered with a four-[illegible] [illegible] which he [illegible] to attach to the 'chute.

SWAYS WILDLY

It only swayed wildly, as its occupants clutched the guy wire.

Rather [illegible] took [illegible] Mrs. Rathborne kissed her husband and shouted down to the laughing crowd:

"I heard that story about if the parachute doesn't open you can bring it back, but what do you do when it does open and you can't bring it back?"

When police who ascended in an adjoining chute asked their name, she called back [illegible]

"You get us down and we'll tell you everything."

When Mr. [illegible] got her feet [illegible] was shivering in a thin red summer dress—by calling "Don't worry, lady, we'll get you down," she replied.

"Yeah, you told us that three hours ago."

She became visibly frightened when an attempt was made to lift her end of the seat.

VISIBLY FRIGHTENED

"No, I don't want to go up," she cried. "My husband will fall out. Why don't you tell us the truth? Please get us down."

Her husband, sitting below her on the tiled board, sought to calm her. He shouted to their would-be rescuers:

"I don't care if we stay up here all night, just so you get us down safely."

GOVERNOR BLAMES COAKLEY

issued no statement and knew nothing regarding it until questioned by reporters.

"Information has come to me," said the governor, "that the statement was sent from the Parker House, from rooms occupied by Daniel H. Coakley."

MAKES NO COMMENT

Councillor Coakley declined to make any comment on the Governor's charge that the statement had emanated from the Coakley offices.

The hearing then proceeded with Callahan excused from the witness stand and with more testimony regarding comparative prices for removing stumps of trees felled by the hurricane last September.

Charles E. Comeau, a Concord contractor, testified he removed a total of 1390 stumps at Lake Walden, Concord; the Concord Country Club, an estate in Concord, and for the city of Somerville—all at an average price of $4 a stump.

He admitted it was all straight removal, with no slash to consider and no holes to be filled, and that conditions in other localities or on other jobs might boost this price.

Henry G. Saumsiegle, purchasing agent for the city of Waltham, testified his city contracted for removal of 145 stumps at $4.25.

He likewise conceded, under cross examination, that he would not consider this contract comparable to those under which the state paid from $23 to $100 for removing tree stumps and slash and filling in the holes.

As today's session opened, there were reports that Saltonstall might ask the executive council to vote removal of Callahan before all evidence was in.

MAY SPEED REMOVAL

While those close to the administration said that the governor himself has given no hint of his plans, they let it be known there is much concern over the likelihood of the public hearings being extended for several weeks or a month.

The hearing entered its third day with more witnesses still to be heard on the first of the 14 charges against Callahan.

This first allegation is that Callahan signed contracts for removal of trees at prices "greatly in excess of the reasonable and fair cost of such work."

Meanwhile strong protests that witnesses are refusing to appear because of the fact that Governor Saltonstall is sitting as sole tribunal over the sessions were lodged by the commissioner's counsel, John L. Murphy.

Murphy said that the proceedings were being increasingly hampered due to the lack of means whereby witnesses can be put under oath required to attend, or be paid for giving their time to testifying.

3 IGNORE SUMMONS

Two of three defense witnesses "invited" to attend yesterday's session did not appear and cannot be compelled to do so, unless the governor Saltonstall decides to call in the Executive Council to it with him formally in judgment, Murphy declared.

Much of today's testimony was expected to throw additional light on the statement of W. R. Smith, president of the Lane Construction Company of Meriden, Ct., that he offered to repair the Jacob's Ladder highway for $100,000 less than the price awarded to B. Perini & Sons of Framingham.

Perini's total contract amounted to $508,839, while the Lane Company's offer came to $310,213. The Framingham firm is getting $3.50 a yard for excavation work and Smith's offer was $2.25 a yard.

Murphy said the defense will attempt to show that Smith's account did not give an accurate picture of the situation and that the expense would have been greater had the Connecticut firm's offer been accepted.

Perini's $3.50 figure included transporting of excavated material to a new embankment along the Westfield river. Murphy declared for which other concerns would charge extra.

Smith admitted he was "disappointed" at not obtaining the Jacob's Ladder contract.

Murphy brought out that the Connecticut firm received more than $700,000 in road and bridge work after last fall's flood.

Weymouth Fire Under Probe

While firemen maintained a guard at the smoking scene of the $500,000 Weymouth Art Leather Company fire today, federal and state officials launched an investigation of the cause.

Army intelligence officers entered the probe as reports persisted that a large portion of the firm's products went into the manufacture of gas masks especially gas mask materials for the British government.

Tons of gun cotton, cloth, solvent, cellulose and other highly inflammable chemicals, which went up in smoke in at least 70 separate explosions during the all-day conflagration, were used in making synthetic leather materials, according to police.

N. E. Machine Tool Plants Humming

Financial Editor

Writing in a "Believe It or Not" vein it is possible for us to set down here today tidings of a booming New England industry . . . Not simply words describing improvement or even better than anticipated recovery . . . But the true story of a remarkable upward surge . . .

MACHINE TOOL . . . Manufacturing plants with which New England is liberally supplied, especially in central Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, provide the opportunity . . . Production of late has been accelerated smartly in order to fill large domestic and foreign orders . . . Most builders, we learn from the American Machinist, are working two or three shift . . . Which is the stuff real boom conditions are made of . . . Business at hand to provide for speeded production includes sizable bookings from motor car makers . . . As well as the rebuilding of a number of plants for the General Motors Detroit transmission plant . . . And a miscellaneous collection of government orders . . . With the last named more potent than the loose group heading may suggest . . . For arsenals and navy yards are active in the market for new equipment . . . And the Pratt & Whitney aircraft divisions are going full blast . . .

RETAIL TRADE . . . Companies serving large cities are viewed bullishly by impartial observers . . . James R. Bancroft, of Boston, writing in the current economic bulletin of the American Institute of Finance, of which he is president takes a constructive stand on leading issues in such a classification . . . Given the business recovery equal to that of the first half of the recession now anticipated . . . And stability of prices . . . Fears of inventory losses will vanish . . . And more important, permit satisfactory margins . . . The emphasis on concerns serving large cities is traceable to the Federal aid extended rural populations . . . Which sustained purchasing power, permitting better relative performances by companies centered in them. . . . There is, therefore, more room for a comeback in city retail units . . .

CARLOADINGS . . . Shown by individual railroads are more than ever a measure of heavy industry activity . . . This was demonstrated here Monday by a traffic breakdown which revealed truckers were getting the lion's share of consumer goods shipments . . . Viewed in such a fashion the report of the New Haven on freight loadings at 14 points on the road strongly suggests heavy goods industries are coming back in its territory . . . During June a 3.4 per cent increase over 1938 was shown . . . While comparison of the first six months of this year and last reveals a jump of 24.2 per cent . . .

FIRM CHANGES . . . Announced by the stock exchange include the admission to partnership in F. H. Prince & Co., of James A. McDonough . . . As of July 17 . . . It is a real pleasure to record the news that his many friends may know of his good fortune . . . Mr. McDonough has been associated for many years with the famed firm long located in Boston, but now in Providence . . . Whose principal, Frederick H. Prince, played such an intimate part in the infant days of transcontinental railroading and meat packing . . . And who has carried his interest in their welfare right up to the present day . . .

Modern Business Woos Shareholders

Economic Commentator

In the last two years, business corporations have made significant progress in debunking anti-capitalism through streamlining and simplifying their accounting reports to stockholders.

In addition, prudent managers have begun to tell shareholders more and more about the products in the hope of converting them into voluntary selling agents for the company.

Moreover, progressive chief executives send new shareholders a welcome letter when they first get on the rolls, and also a letter of "regret" when they sell out. Thus, they humanize big business, and give the modern corporation a "homey" tang.

In order to do this successfully, such relations must be built around the personality of the chief executive. The average man can warm up to an individual better than to a committee.

The financial institutions too are gradually becoming more alert to these problems in human relations. They need to make their rank and file of employes less bureaucratic, and more social or customer-minded. Then they will increase the number of friends, and every business institution in this period of rapid change needs many friends in order to progress under the technique of the democratic process.

Executives alert to public opinion can reinterpret the modern corporation as a virtual consumer cooperative.

If the company has stockholders who are also customers, it is virtually a consumers' cooperative.

Certainly the great mutual life insurance companies and the savings banks are in form closely akin to the concept of consumers' cooperatives, but these great financial institutions have not yet fully capitalized in public prestige on this fact.

Once management simplifies accounting procedure and takes the real owners fully and understandingly into their confidence, management will win new and significant loyalty.

WASHINGTON, July 12 (INS)—A stop order has been issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission today against the registration statement of the Investment Corporation of North America, a Delaware corporation. The statement, the commission said, contained untrue statements of material facts.

Investment Buyers Aid Stock Rally

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—More buyers appeared in the stock market today and gains were extended throughout the list, some ranging to 2 points or more . . .

Demand spread from a few so-called "investment" favorites after an early period of hesitation.

A block of 1100 shares of American Telephone appeared on the tape at 164⅞, up nearly a point. This seemed to stimulate buying in other prominent issues.

STATE'S U.S. DEBT BILLION AND HALF

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—Representative Martin L. of Massachusetts said today Massachusetts' share of the national debt on a per capita basis was $1,538,360,200, of which about half he attributed to the present administration.

The House minority leader estimated the state's share of the total debt was 24.6 per cent of its total assessed valuation of real and personal property as of Jan. 1, 1938, which totaled $6,243,408,900.

"Debt incurred under the New Deal on a per capita basis in the state was 13 per cent of assessed property valuation," he added.

Martin listed the per capita debt of each Massachusetts county which showed Bristol County's share was 38.9 per cent, or $131,981,500, of its assessed valuation of real and personal property totaling $349,404,032. Its share of the "New Deal debt," Martin added, was the highest in the state, $70,001,200, or 20.6 per cent on the basis of percentages.

Figures for other counties showing their share of the national debt and the percentage which the share amounts to of assessed valuations were:

Barnstable—$11,604,400, 11.7 per cent; Berkshire—$4,693,400, 31.4; Bristol—$131,981,500, 38.9; Dukes—$1,792,988, 10.4; Essex—$180,290,400, 29; Franklin—$17,959,500, 28; Hampden — $121,449,500, 25.3; Hampshire—$26,355,900, 36.2; Middlesex — $339,442,400, 35.3; Nantucket—$1,331,400, 10.9; Norfolk—$108,392,200, 17.8; Plymouth—$58,756,500, 24.2; Suffolk—$318,392,00, 19.2; Worcester—$177,829,600, 32.8.

Martin listed the per capita share of the "New Deal debt" by counties and the per centage it amounted to of assessed valuations in the counties as:

Barnstable—$6,202,500, 6.3 per cent; Berkshire—$23,174,600, 16.6; Bristol—$70,001,200, 20.6; Dukes—$850,900, 5.5; Essex—$95,623,600, 15.3; Franklin—$9,525,500, 14.9; Middlesex—$179,503,400, 13.4; Norfolk—$57,488,700, 9.4; Plymouth—$31,173,700, 12.8; Suffolk—$168,870,900, 10.2; Worcester—$94,318,400, 17.4.

Tax-Exempt Plan Off Till Next Session

WASHINGTON, July 12 (INS)—The House ways and means committee today voted to postpone until the next session of Congress action on President Roosevelt's proposal to wipe out future federal, state and local tax exempt securities.

The committee agreed it would study the tax exemption question in connection with a general survey of the whole federal tax system.

Trade Pact Signed

LONDON, July 12 (AP)—A British-Rumanian trade agreement under which Britain granted Rumania a credit of £5,500,000 (about $25,740,000) and will purchase 200,000 tons of Rumanian wheat was signed today at the board of trade.

Spend-Lend Bill Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON, July 12 (INS)—President Roosevelt's proposed $3,460,000,000 lending program collided head-on with opposition from economy bloc senators and the Association of American Railroads today as it was started through Congress.

With administration forces trying to hammer down a move to delay consideration until the next session of Congress, the measure was called up for hearing before the Senate banking and currency committee.

Senators Glass (D.) of Virginia, and Adams (D.) of Colorado, leaders of the economy bloc, expressed opposition of it. Railroad spokesmen said they would object to a provision of the measure earmarking $750,000,000 for government purchase of railway equipment for renting to carriers. The railroads favor outright loans.

Senator Adams protested to Senator Wagner, (D.) of New York, chairman of the committee, because the measure was not sent to a subcommittee for consideration first.

Wagner, reflecting administration fears that the program might be caught in the adjournment rush and delayed until next session, replied:

"It is rather late in the session."

"But I've read the bill and I think it will need considerable attention," Adams retorted, indicating economy bloc members were planning to riddle it with amendments.

'TARZAN FINDS A SON' IS NEW LOEWS' OFFERING

Thrills Pack Jungle Picture

Bringing with them a "Tarzan, Junior," Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan come to Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters in "Tarzan Finds a Son," fourth of the famous jungle adventure romances based on the Edgar Rice Burroughs characters.

In the new story they find a wrecked plane in the jungle, and rear the baby which is the only survivor. The role is played by five-year-old Johnny Sheffield, America's most amazing boy athlete. A safari reaches the jungle man and his mate, seeking traces of the plane, and the child becomes the center of plot over a legacy due him.

Tarzan refuses to give the boy up and Miss O'Sullivan is forced to trick her mate to send him back to civilization. A native tribe captures the party. Weissmuller rides to the rescue with an army of apes mounted on elephants, and a dramatic twist works out the problem.

Thrills include the routing of a torture orgy of savages by the ape cavalry, amazing underwater swimming and the rescue of the baby from a rhino.

Cheeta, the almost human chimpanzee, provides comedy, as does Baby Bee, smallest baby elephant in the United States. The cast includes Ian Hunter, Henry Stephenson, Frieda Inescort, Henry Wilcoxon, Laraine Day and Morton Lowry.

Hundreds of natives and wild animals of every description are seen in the jungle thriller.

The companion feature is another Metro feature "Stronger Than Desire," a dramatic story of New York society life and its blackmail and a murder mystery bring complications.

MEET TARZAN FAMILY, Johnny Weissmuller, little Johnny Sheffield and pretty Maureen O'Sullivan, in "Tarzan Finds a Son," opening tomorrow at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

Man About Town Best Benny Film

"Man About Town," Paramount comedy starring Jack Benny, with Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Phil Harris and Benny's sensational radio foil, Rochester, starts tomorrow on Paramount and Loew's screens.

The cream of attractions will be Grantland Rice's Sportlight newspaper adventure romance, featuring John Howard, Ned Parker and Harvey Hayes.

"Man About Town," is easily the best Benny film ever made. The picture affords Jack Benny and his famous comedian Rochester an excellent opportunity to be their natural, gagging selves and in great measure parodies the dog-eat-dog Broadway night club set.

With Benny and Rochester providing comedy Dorothy Lamour turning on the romance, Edward Arnold as the jealous husband, Phil Harris as Benny's rival and Binnie Barnes and Betty Grable as the other women, the story details the mad merry misadventures of an American theatrical impresario in London.

In an effort to win the hand of his singing star, Dorothy Lamour, Benny attempts to make her jealous by making love to a married English lady. She encourages him in order to arouse her titled husband. He can become fast and furious, leading into a series of hilarious complications.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Never saw anything like these kids who have been the attraction at Marcel's; Queenie Smith and Edward Stevenson, the RKO style specialist, stepping at the Ball.

Rochelle Hudson is said to be considering matrimony with a young film man as soon as he is legally free; the Betty Warner-Milton Sperling wedding reception tomorrow night at the Beverly Wilshire, one of the season's important social events. The bridegroom, a 20th Century-Fox writer, was guest of honor at a stag party Saturday night; Sally Eilers leaves this week for three months of stock in Connecticut. She will be joined by Harry Joe Brown in the fall and together they will visit South America.

The most unhappy man in Hollywood for a few days was Basil Rathbone, who wanted to play the chief high justice in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" more than he ever wanted to play any part.

Universal had already sold the picture with Rathbone and Sigrid Gurie to the exhibitors and if Basil had stepped out it would have meant a terrific loss. Cliff Work, who is a diplomat, appealed to Rathbone on that basis, never mentioning a lawsuit. So rather than put the film company in the middle, he agreed to forget the RKO offer.

CARROLL ASHBURN STARS WITH COHASSET PLAYERS

Carroll Ashburn, appearing in an important role in "Our Town," to be presented by the South Shore Players of Cohasset with Author Thornton Wilder in the starring role beginning Monday, is known as one of the smallest actors on the American stage.

Ashburn has appeared in one George Abbott production after another, "Dead End," "Brother Rat," "What a Life," and, most recently, "The Boys From Syracuse," have had the benefit of his services.

Ashburn has been featured by the South Shore Players during all but one of the six seasons they have been operating in Cohasset. Three years ago he left the cast of "Brother Rat" to appear during the months of August with the summer group.

HOW MUCH LONGER, asks Representative John G. Alexander, of Minnesota, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, are we going to play "sugar daddy" to Europe?

Representative Alexander points out that we have let foreigners manipulate our stock markets, that we have lent South America immense sums on "worthless bonds" and have complacently allowed Europe to default on a series of vast loans.

Just what this latter debt means to us is brought out strikingly by Mr. Alexander in the following astonishing facts:

38,250,000 OF THESE!
Defaulted War Debt Would Build Them

"Interest on this war debt for 20 years at 4 per cent adds another $8,800,000,000 to total nearly TWENTY BILLION DOLLARS, which would even today pay half our great national debt, and which, added to our other war costs in terms of dollars, would pay the cost of running the public, the elementary, the high schools, universities and colleges of the entire nation for 51 years.

"It would build nearly 6,000,000 miles of paved roads, which is about nine times the mileage of all surfaced roads now in use in our good old United States of America.

"It would construct 38,250,000 six-room houses, or enough to house, with a new home, every family in the good old United States.

"It would construct 48 hospitals, costing a million dollars each, in every one of 3073 counties of our nation.

"It would pay the unemployment insurance premiums of all employes of business and industry of the United States for more than 300 years."

But one of the countries that owe this colossal sum is bankrupt. On the contrary, EACH IS ROLLING IN ARMAMENT WEALTH.

These nations have expended, and will continue to expend, billions of dollars (OUR DOLLARS!) on murder machines.

They owe us enough to take us out of the Roosevelt depression. But instead of paying even an instalment on their just debts they work day and night to get more money from us, to get our help to fight their wars and even to insure their ships in case of a general outbreak.

The worst of the whole matter is that NOT ONE SINGLE VIGOROUS STEP has been taken by our State Department to recover these debts.

MANY LETTERS reach us daily, and we read them all. Each brings a message exclusively its own. One may contain a criticism. Another may voice praise. A third may offer a suggestion. Others may expose injustices or call our attention to conditions that can be helped by editorial comment.

All are important—even the little note written with lead pencil on wrapping paper.

A typical and [illegible] letter is one we received today from Mr. E. M. Rountree, who writes:

"Since you invite readers' comments, here are mine; far from technical criticism, which might rate higher.

"The most perfectly pleasing picture is that of the little girl with the poem 'Music Box' in your June 27 paper. But imagine the same rare, exploring, surprised look on an old face—have you one of that, too, Mr. Editor? It is a precious thing; without it there is no heaven.

"The most horrible, appalling picture I have ever seen is the front page illustration titled 'The Kill' of Ray Olson.

"In the crowd there are only three faces expressing regret, horror or concern at the encompassing significance. If their attitude is natural—not posed for the camera—it is truly a picture of all that makes a hell.

"A paper that gives its readers both sides—heights and depths as great as life is great; factual, discerning, judicious—that is the Boston Evening American. And I like it."

EDWIN C. HILL'S story concerning the probability of a positive cure for tuberculosis interests all States, Massachusetts particularly.

Here, because of practical educational programs, effective treatment and excellent sanatoriums, the death rate from this disease has declined [illegible] than 75 per cent in the past 40 years, and it is still falling.

Despite the economic crisis and the resultant curtailment of expenses, the Bay State has not lost ground in the relentless battle it is waging.

While only 35 per cent of the known tuberculosis cases received hospital care ten years ago, 75 per cent today enjoy such care,

The Mama Doll

WHILE Teddy bears can only squeak . . . a mama doll can really speak . . . It's not that she's so very smart . . . but then, the words came from her heart . . . and when you squeeze her extra tight . . . she cries "Ma-MA!" as if in fright.

But Daddy, who so loves to tease . . . says modern girls don't act like that . . . for when a modern girl you squeeze . . . (so Daddy says) she just stands pat.

Human Side of News -:- by EDWIN C. HILL

WAY OUT WEST two top-notch scientists, G men working in the underworld of germs, are about to hunt anew the trail of the killer of thousands.

Their chase will take them along as strange a road as ever Sherlock Holmes travelled although they will never set foot outside the narrow limits of a university laboratory.

They will carry no guns, but that indispensable item in every well-equipped detective's tool kit, a searchlight, will be handy in the form of a machine capable of detecting waves more sensitive than thought.

The two super-detectives, owning so many academic degrees they make the late Van Dine's precious sleuth seem an unlettered hillbilly, are Dr. I. L. Chaikoff and Dr. J. Traum of the University of California. The villain they pursue is the germ that causes tuberculosis and, incidentally, sixty-odd thousand deaths every 12 months in these United States alone.

A LITTLE WHILE back a curious clue was picked up. It was discovered that right after the tuberculosis germ enters a victim it disappears. Presto! Just the way Fu Manchu is there one instant and in the next is gone. And just as Fu Manchu always comes back, so does the tuberculosis germ. It turns up after 14 days.

Chaikoff and Traum propose to catch their enemy during his time of invisibility. Their notion is that while nobody sees him he prepares his attack.

A weakness of the tuberculosis germ makes them pretty sure they can break in according to plan. He is a glutton for a salt of phosphorus. This salt is easily made radio-active. And Chaikoff and Traum, remember, have their instrument of incredible sensitivity. Their scheme is as simple as that. Feed the beast.

Somewhere, sometime, in the course of those 14 days they are sure they will catch one tiny wave from those dancing particles of salt of phosphorus.

When they do they will, perhaps, have tracked down a great foe of mankind.

HIGH TIME, too, that someone tracked him down. Man's microscope would have a hard job uncovering a more dangerous enemy. A curiously two-sided enemy, for treated in one way the bacillus provides phlocol, a substance helpful to sufferers from jaundice. But in its state of original sin it kills myriads.

In the United States alone it killed 65,352 last year. That is more than might be lost in a great battle. Yet only the most vigorous efforts on the part of preventive organizations, such as the Prendergast Preventorium, kept the toll that low. The year before the number was six thousand more.

A slow reduction! All too slow, even though 43 States reported decreases in deaths and only Florida, Georgia, Virginia, Montana and Wyoming had to confess increases.

Political Parade -:- By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, July 12.—It must be said of Mr. Roosevelt, whether in commendation or otherwise, that he never knows when he has been repudiated.

Such a vast multitude of "yes men," such an army of voters, has been created by the expenditure of billions to "keep the President" that Congress and the country lose sight of the fact that once upon a time he was repudiated in no uncertain terms.

That was in 1920, when Mr. Roosevelt [illegible] late Colonel George Harvey dubbed him in that campaign was running for Vice President on the ticket with Jimmy Cox, both in ardent support of Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations, and its entangling European alliances.

Cox and Roosevelt went to the people on that issue, and the people repudiated them.

Yet Mr. Roosevelt is acting today precisely as though he believed he had a "mandate" from the people to drag them into another foreign war.

IF THE PRESIDENT does not know when he has been repudiated, the Senate should show him.

Fallen as it is today from its once high estate, reckless grabber of federal money for State grist as it has become under the demoralizing influences of the New Deal, the Senate more nearly lives up to its splendid traditions in the field of foreign affairs.

There are indications now, as the President endeavors to force a war policy on a Congress which desires peace, that the Senate may repeat one of its most brilliant pages.

Almost an even 20 years ago a crisis confronted the Senate much like that which confronts it today.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT
The People Failed to Agree

Woodrow Wilson, at Paris, was cunningly spinning a web for the entanglement of unwary America in European quarrels, politics and future wars.

To do this he wove the fabric of the League of Nations into the Treaty of Versailles in such a way that the treaty could not be ratified without accepting the League.

On March 4, 1919, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, offered a resolution declaring that "the Constitution of the League of Nations in the form now proposed to the peace conference should not be accepted by the United States."

STARTING with a mere handful of Senators opposed to dragging America into an European war league, by the time this resolution was offered—it was not voted upon—37 Senators and Senators-elect subscribed their names to it.

In almost identical manner, 34 Senators today have pledged themselves in unalterable opposition to President Roosevelt's Anti-Neutrality policy.

Mr. Roosevelt, who in 1920 embraced the League of Nations, and went down to defeat, would do well to look back upon history for a moment.

"I spoke to Eduard Benes, who's sailing for Europe," a reporter informs at Sardi's. PICKED AS STAR IN 'FEBRUARY HILL'

By Louella O. Parsons

Ginger Rogers

HOLLYWOOD, July 12—A far cry from the earthiness of "February Hill" to the delicate fantasy of "The Enchanted Cottage." Yet Pandro Berman will produce both of them, with Ginger Rogers as the star. Probably the greatest difficulty in keeping Ginger from being typed as a star in "The Enchanted Cottage," made as long ago as 1923 by the old Inspiration Pictures Company, starred Mae McAvoy and Richard Barthelmess and it was considered a great movie triumph in its day.

I am surprised that it hasn't reached the talkie stage here this, but I am told it was tied up in the estate of the late Sir Arthur Wing Pinero and it was only last week that Pandro succeeded in buying the rights. The price paid was in the neighborhood of $25,000 and that's not much in this day and age when the dearth of worthwhile screen vehicles is adding gray hairs to producers' heads.

Dry Cereals Aid Menus

By MARTHA LEE

Jaded summer morning appetites can be stimulated best with carefully planned breakfasts, for it's surprising what an attractive dish will do to help the cause along. Fresh fruit and dry cereals hold full sway in this respect during the summer months.

And dry cereals save the time and energy of the homemaker, too, for they do not necessitate early morning or night-before preparation. We're thinking of the old fashioned whole wheat cereal that used to cook for hours before it was ready to use, and comparing it with delicious wheat flakes now available on the market. It takes no coaxing on mother's part to get the youngsters to eat them and many the little boy insists on starting the day with wheat flakes, "the breakfast of champions."

Serve them with sliced bananas, strawberries, raspberries blackberries, peaches, etc., for they make ideal companions.

VERSATILITY OF WHEAT FLAKES

Many people think of "cereal" as just another word for "breakfast"—but while cereals make tasty and nourishing breakfast dishes they have many additional uses, even to being employed as ingredients in preparing intricate and fancy cooking.

Wheat flakes, for instance, are good added to applesauce, puddings, scalloped vegetables, and to poultry stuffing, as well as sprinkled lightly over desserts like custard, gelatin, ice cream, etc.

This same point of texture is carried out when flaked cereals are substituted in recipes which read "sprinkle top with buttered crumbs." Sometimes bread crumbs properly browned are not on hand; a half cup or so of wheat flakes may readily be crumbled or rolled to whatever consistency is desired.

Until you have used wheat flake crumbs on top of pudding, sauce or creamed vegetables, you will not know how much their crisp texture adds to the enjoyment of the final dish.

A great deal is to be gained in flavor and crispness when wheat flakes are used in making cookies, too. Try these cookies, made from the "breakfast of champions":

WHEAT FLAKE BARS

½ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1½ cups flour
2 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
2 tsp. vanilla extract
1 cup chopped walnut meats
1 cup chopped dates
3 cups wheaties

Cream butter and brown sugar well. Add beaten eggs. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together, then add to creamed mixture. Add vanilla, nut meats, chopped dates and wheaties. Spread batter in greased pan (8x8x2 inches). Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 30 minutes. Cut into bars while warm. Roll in confectioners' sugar. Makes about 15 bars.

WHEAT FLAKE DROP CAKES

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups flour
½ tsp. soda
½ tsp. cloves
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
6 tbsp. sour milk
3 cups wheaties, slightly rolled
½ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup chopped raisins

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream well. Add well beaten eggs. Sift flour once before measuring. Mix and sift flour, soda, cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg, and add alternately with milk. Add slightly rolled wheaties nuts and raisins. Drop by spoonfuls on baking sheet and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven, 425 deg. F. Makes 36 drop cakes.

These cookies and cakes served with a delicious cold milk drink make a nice in-between-meals snack.

VANILLA MILK SHAKE

2 tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. vanilla
1 cup milk

Shake well and serve at once. Serves 1.

Don't Wish--Act! Word to Women

Is there something you want more than anything else in the world? Of course there is!

From the day we're born we begin to wish—for the biggest apple, the longest curls, the handsomest beau, the most glittering career. Or we wish we didn't have to grow old ever, but could always be bright, full of the joy of living.

BUT—asks Fannie Hurst in her stimulating booklet, "Today Is Ladies' Day"—what do we do about it? The sad truth is that many of us, afraid of the bright rainbow of our dreams, bury all those golden wishes deep down inside ourselves.

We need a jolt to wake us to courage, action—and that is where Fannie Hurst comes into our lives!

Read her searching questions, her stirring challenge to women in "Today Is Ladies' Day." Author of many best sellers including "Lummox," "Four Daughters"—Fannie Hurst has lived richly, successfully. Let her set you to thinking—to doing!

You believe you have talents. Says Fannie Hurst, "Do not expect that capacity to crawl out of the crystal gazer's ball or to lie in wait for you." It rests with you—and you alone—to be what you want to be.

A happy marriage? Learn "of what stuff is that magic strip of carpet that leads to marital happiness."

Must you retire to the sidelines in the forties? No, says Fannie Hurst—exploded is that idea that physical changes mean psychological ones. Know how to "crash through a difficult period into balance and buoyancy."

Yes, with a flashing whip of her words, Fannie Hurst stings you to action—in her 40-page booklet TODA IS LADIES' DAY. Crammed with startling ideas, practical advice—that show you how to turn wishes into accomplished facts, turn living into a joyful experience.

Manners

Guest of Honor

By MRS. BEECKMAN

I am constantly astonished at the number of hostesses who help themselves first when there is a woman guest at their table. I never am able to read the explanation in the expression of most of these hostesses, for they always look so smug in the thought they are being "correct."

Whatever the mistaken reason, it is no compliment to the guest of honor if the hostess is served first. Under this procedure, the hostess receives the fresh dish with the unused serving pieces. Passed to the woman guest, or to the woman guest of honor, is the incomplete, broken-in dish, with the used serving pieces. Which of them receives the real courtesy, the greater consideration?

To the hostess who thinks graciously and carefully about every detail of her service, it is important she give courteous consideration to her guests; that she honors her guest of honor. She will always, therefore, give to her woman guest of honor the privilege of helping herself to a fresh, untouched dish. She will realize that it is rude to permit herself to be served first.

Even when the carving and serving are done at the table by the host or hostess, the woman guest of honor should be served first. With this informal service, the host or hostess has an opportunity of honoring the woman guest of honor by graciously asking her first for her preferences. As the guest of honor's plate is passed to her the host or hostess may courteously say, "This is for you, Mrs. Hill (or 'Mary'), and I hope it is just as you wished."

POOR Young PEOPLE

By MAY EDGINTON
Author of 'FAVORITE WIFE'

THE FIRM never mentioned Miss Chi stobel Ilkes, although conjecture must be rife in that particular little world of men and machines of which he had been part.

The senior partner remembered the gay party that the young couple had given last summer, and so did his wife and both of them were coming to Lewis Lewstein's new Ice Ballet on the first night of January, the senior partner assured her.

Then, before the first of January arrived great news. The big race had nearly been won—though not quite. For the Vanderbilt Cup race Burne Yorke's man and car, driven up to the last moment in performance, Sulsey, the all important trophy in Long Island had been carried off. A long wire cabled congratulations—thoughtfully; and that, as at once, seemed to herself to cease loving and congratulating, or taking any interest at all in her husband's doings.

There might, indeed, be some of his brief letters lying at Wellington Villa, waiting for her; but what had he ever put into the letters she had received? "I love you a lot . . . Bear up," was the zenith.

BY CAR

Was that enough? It wasn't. She had her own career and flung herself into it.

Up and down, between London and the Sussex house by the sea, she was rushing all through November and December. But now she traveled easily by car. No more third class railway carriages, worrying about baby's comfort! Rehearsals absorbed such time as the baby did not claim.

Yet, also, she found time for Ascot, escorted by Punch in a gray topper, very devoted. She found time for dining and dancing, in a party at Henley.

Never had she felt so strong, so decisive, so gay, so bitter.

Laura's death hadn't been in vain, according to poor Laura's own computation.

In that corner of Sussex where windmills stood, the young actress, with her sunburned rosy baby—and an absent husband—began to be a center of attraction.

So she wasn't, couldn't, be lonely.

New friends down in this country retreat looked for news of her success on the night of January the first. They sent her telegrams and boxes of their best roses.

NOT FAIR

Only, nothing from Burne. Day cried, as she dressed for the first scene, to thrust Burne from her mind. And yet, she couldn't help that incessant wonder which crept insidiously through her mind and drove wolfish fangs into her heart, whenever she was off guard. True, she herself had ceased her letters, her telegrams, five weeks ago.

True, she had convinced herself over and over of the soundness of poor Laura's one piece of wisdom. Money made a woman safe. Money might help a woman to her honorable decorations from a pleased world. Money had paid for the baby's nurse, his idyllic summer, her idyllic summer, her clothes, her flat, her parties, her very health and spirits. She was strong because of the money which a failing, disheartened woman had died to give her.

Also it was true that tonight she had promised to give Punch Vanner a decision.

"No answer isn't fair," he had said gently.

It might be just as good to be Mrs. Punch Vanner as Miss Day Flowers, or rather Mrs. Burne York. When all the surely ghastly formalities were through — "they won't worry you, dear," Punch continually promised it wouldn't be so bad to settle down with him, own lovely houses and cars, have more babies. Would it?

"We can't go on just being made fools of, Day," he had persuaded her only today. "Because that's what it amounts to. Chris treating me as if I don't exist. And Burne . . ."

Burne treated her in much the same way. No use deceiving oneself.

Men don't know anything about us, she had thought often before tonight. They didn't begin to guess how easily and completely a woman might be possessed forever by a man she loved and who loved her; how she could slave for him, suffer for him, rejoice with him, defend him, adore him, and drown him. Men seemed essentially wasteful, except about infinite things.

Conversely, men didn't know how swiftly such love could die.

They didn't know what excellent use a resolute woman now, Day thought—could make of second beats. They didn't know that money and flowers and gaiety and friends and work would fill a woman's heart to their own entire exclusion.

Lewis Lewstein came in looking all black and white, evening clothes and white gardenia and white hair, bushy black eyebrows and black eyes.

NOT FROM BURNE

"This is going to be a great night for you," he said. "And so it will be a great night for me, too."

Marriage even with a failure for a partner, and motherhood even at a high cost, had done great things for her. Lewstein went to thinking, watching her make up. Slim as ever, she was firm and resilient. Her mind drilled her body and drilled it well. She exuded vitality, which lit up her beauty and transformed every pose and movement. Now she was putting on that helmet of high tossing feathers, for her old Haute Ecole turn.

The Haute Ecole turn had been improved, speeded, made airy! Day Flowers led the whole ballet in it. It alone comprised the first scene.

There was a tapping on the door. Lewstein felt impatience.. "Tch! tch!"

Mr. Avril was admitted.

Lewstein and Mr. Avril regarded each other.

Day sat at her dressing table, these old friends on either side of her.

"Mr. Vanner," said her dresser next. Worried. On edge. The whole staff of the theater suffered from first-night nerves.

Only Day Flowers had never known a first night and was lucky in her pristine innocence.

"Let him come in!"

"It's a grand house, Day," said Punch, entering. A frequent first nighter, he knew the feeling of a house, he could size up its expectations and enthusiasms in one long look.

And he had done his share toward the grand house. His best friends filled two rows of stalls.

"Open my telegrams, Punch."

He opened them, and read them out.

Nothing from Burne.

No one in the dressing room remarked on this; no one reminded her that she had a husband; no one said so much as: "It's a pity your husband will miss tonight."

"I DON'T CARE"

Lewstein, Avril, Punch, the dresser—nobody gave Burne any thought that could be put into pleasant enough words.

And I don't care, she thought; keyed high.

Now she was ready to the last tiny detail.

Now, inexperienced as she was the feeling of that impressively filled auditorium came through to her. It came like an audible voice with a message at once imperative and life giving. It tingled in the air, she felt herself vibrate to it. And all the excitement behind the scenes, all the wave of hopeful confidence that flowed over staff and cast alike, washed over her, too. "Three more minutes, dear," murmured Lewstein, getting up.

Punch pressed her hand, and hurried off to his seat. Avril must hurry off, too.

She hear, faintly, the sound of the orchestra beginning to play.

The call boy was at the door.

And suddenly she was lonely.

She wasn't afraid of the audience, but of her own loneliness.

She who never need be lonely now!

I believe I'm too small and silly, after all, she feared.

Lewstein spoke kindly, watching her, not needing to be told about sudden sensations. "You'll get over all that, darling. I know. Don't worry."

Yet even he didn't understand what all that was.

She conjured thought of the baby, down in Sussex, now asleep; imagining him pink and warm and downy; sunk in sleep in the way that babies did sink into rest, quick and fathomlessly. He winged to her, somehow. She wasn't lonely. She wasn't. For you, darling, she thought. It shall all be for you.

And so she braced herself for her first entrance.

Perhaps many glamorous stars fortified themselves by some such tenuous means.

Now she was out of her dressing room, Lewstein behind her, murmuring encouragement into her ear. Also he murmured threats, like whip cracks, as if she were a high mettled, frightened horse. Now she had reached the wings and her tights were being fastened on. The music was [illegible] but carefully [illegible] at the sea of faces down in the great auditorium. Ball Heroes Step From Memory Album

NOT THAT I WISH TO THRUST the red end of a cigaret against anybody's promotional balloon, but there is something a trifle depressing about an Old Timers' game.

AUSTEN LAKE

The elder heroes whom the paying public remembers as lithe-limbed, flat stomached, with cow catcher jaws and bunch of banana hands are coming back to Fenway Park today—40 of them. Now they are creaky in the knees. Their youthful flats and hollows have turned to bulges and swells. Time has etched parenthetical grooves beside their jaws. Their movements are jerky and often arthritic.

What happens in the life of every baseball hero, be he a Tris Speaker, Eddie Collins, Bill Carrigan or Grover Alexander, is this:

One day, at the sundown of his athletic life, he strips off his woolen knickers, unalings his quilted sliding pads, furls down his stockings and leaves them in a sweaty puddle on the locker room floor—for the last time!

Then he tiptoes over the dusty floor to the shower room and soaps, rinses and towels himself. The club trainer may paint his bruises with iodine or tape a sprain with surgical plaster—for the last time!

He will dress and go into the October evening and past the silhouetted grandstand steel work—through with baseball forever, or on his way down to some barefoot league.

* * *

AT THAT MOMENT A STRANGE THING happens, unaware to the old major league hero. For instead of one person, whole and indivisible, he becomes two—the real Speaker, Collins, Carrigan or Alexander, and the legendary ones. For the real hero passes into the evening, finds some kind of business, grows gradually gray, accumulates worries and becomes fat or thin, a success or a failure.

But the nebulous hero remains behind as a folklore for the generations of hometown fans to haunt their I-remember gatherings. They never grow a day older in the memory of the people, but stay always in their minds shock-haired and meaty youths with firm chins who had the rare knack of busting up ball games, or sliding into home plate in a swirl of dust, or picking some high foul off the foliage of a lady box-customer's bonnet

For a baseball fan's memory never grows up with the swift roll of the years, but remains forever green and 20 years later when Boston fans have grown gray and gouty they still recall their old ball heroes in terms of yesterday's youth—still young, bubbling and dynamic as when they romped through the major league scene. That's why

Challedon Favored In $50,000 Mass.' Cap

Challedon still rules a favorite to win as a brilliant field of thoroughbreds prepares to battle for the $50,000 purse in the Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs this afternoon.

Fighting Fox, Ligaroti, the Derby mark entry of War Minstrel and Blind Eagle, Pompoon, Burning Star, Cloulion, Masked General and the other horses entered in the classic all have their backers who feel their choices will finish in front.

It is expected that a crowd of 45,000 persons will attend the classic.

Other than season passes, there will not be any guests for Suffolk Downs today. The usual daily passes are not good today, and as a result the box office figures will take a decided jump.

Weather conditions are expected to be perfect for the race which will be the seventh event on the card. Post time will be as close to 5:15 p. m. as possible. The late start will enable thousands of persons working in the city to get to Suffolk Downs in time to witness the running of the handicap.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND

There will be many notables on hand for the race. They have come here from all parts of the country.

Bing Crosby made a special trip to Boston from California to see Ligaroti strive to take the pot of gold.

Stewards Thorp, Almy Parke and Bryan called a special meeting of the jockeys this morning.

"This is one of the most important races of the year," Thorp told the jockeys, "and we want you boys to help make the event a great success. We know you will all be in there doing your utmost to win, but in doing so we wish you to live up to the rules. We do not want the Massachusetts Handicap marred by foul riding. Ride hard, but ride clean."

Starter Bob Friend talked with the owners and trainers of the various horses, and listened to their suggestions as to the latter ways to handle their mounts.

BEST JOCKEYS MOUNTED

"No two horses act the same at the post," said Bob, "and I felt owners and trainers should be permitted to give me suggestions as to the better way to handle their mounts. I am anxious to co-operate in every possible way in an effort to make the race a success."

The class of the jockeys are

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (AP)—Jimmy (Ripper) Collins, former major league baseball player and current home run king of the Pacific Coast League with Los Angeles, tried his hand at something with questionable success.

Collins, once a member of Pepper Martin's noted St. Louis Cardinal Mudcat Band, submitted his untitled composition to Ray Kyser, the band leader.

Kyser gave it rapt attention, truthfull advised it might be changed here and there, and added solemnly

"I believe it might be a hit—with Pepper Martin's Mudcats."

Dempsey Model For Youth of U. S.

By JACK DEMPSEY
(As told to W. B. Seabrook)
(Copyright, 1939, by King Features Syndicate)

Since Jack Dempsey became the hero and idol of several million American kids, not to mention the "sheik letters" that flooded his mail and make the American girls a close second, I think it may be a pretty good thing for the kids and the girls and their parents to know that as a champion Dempsey was a man who didn't smoke, didn't drink, didn't swear and didn't gamble.

This is neither morality stuff, nor Sunday school propaganda.

One night we were playing pinochle in the champion's rooms. This is no Little Rollo story. It's a picture of life as it is. And every other man in the room was smoking and drinking something. Dempsey entertains with a lavish and oriental hospitality.

There was a big tub of cracked ice cooling black bottles of ale from over the Canadian border. There was pinch-bottle Scotch for those who wanted it. Mineral waters, cigars, cigarettes, champagne.

Jerry, the little, solemn, slope-shouldered Greek wrestler, who is now Jack Dempsey's rubber, valet and general factotum, opens and passes all the refreshments.

He doesn't offer them to the champion in passing. It is an accepted fact Dempsey doesn't indulge. Among his intimates it no longer excites any sort of comment.

A PINOCHLE FAN

Dempsey is absorbed in the pinochle game. His luck has been rotten for an hour, and he's 50 cents behind. I said he didn't gamble. I meant it. He plays habitually for nickels and dimes. He wins or loses a dollar in an evening, and he's a millionaire. He might as well be playing for matches or paper chips or marbles. It's the cards he's interested in. The nickels and dimes are merely a way of keeping count. He won't play for real money because he thinks it spoils the fun of the game.

At eleven o'clock, Jerry unceremoniously pokes his watch in front of the champion's face and mumbles that it's time to go to bed. Dempsey has just picked up a good hand, and he's annoyed. He pushes the watch away. Jerry lets him finish playing the hand, and interrupts again with his watch and his mumbling.

Fifteen minutes later, the champion is sound asleep behind fairly sound-proof doors at the end of a private corridor, while the party goes on without him.

The next day at lunch, I deliberately brought up the subject of smoking and drinking. He talked about it with some embarrassment at first:

"No, it isn't like you think. There's no Willie-boy stuff in it. I've never promised anybody, not even Kearns. I don't know if we've ever even talked about it. I've got nothing against cigarettes or liquor for that matter, if people don't get soused. And it's not a matter of training, either—not now I'm not in training. Some people like it and others don't, and I guess that's about all there is to it.

"If you want the low-down about myself, it's nothing but this: Smoking makes me sick and dopey, and liquor makes me feel like a fool. One cocktail makes me dizzy, and if I take three puffs of a cigarette, I feel like I'm going to be sick at my stomach. I guess I could learn, but when I go into heavy training I'd have to quit it, and what's the use?

TRIED TOBACCO TWICE

"Once or twice, out at big dinners, I've lighted a cigar or cigarette just to be smart, and I've had to put it down. That's no credit to me, it's just the way I am.

"At least half of the nicest girl pals and friends I've had since I got to be champion, smoke cigarettes when they want to. And I've thought sometimes, out at dinner with one of them, what a funny thing it is for the girl to be smoking and the man not. I've thought how much funnier still it would be around the house if a man married a girl who smoked and he didn't.

And there's the real truth about it. Jack Dempsey is abstemious, not for moral reasons, or because he was afraid of his title, but because it's his nature. He is somewhat the same about food. He eats rather lightly for a man of his size and weight.

It is interesting to note Dempsey's wife, the former Hannah Williams, is an attractive American girl.

In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, Dempsey will tell of his diet as champion.

here to ride. It will be a battle of wits between these daring little riders as well as a struggle for supremacy between the crack field of thoroughbreds.

The distance of the race is a mile and a furlong, and as a result it will be a real test for horse flesh.

There is sure to be a merry battle for position on the clubhouse turn, after which the field will settle down in the race through the back stretch.

Once the horses hit the far turn the struggle for first honors will be on in earnest. From that point to the finish every jockey will urge his mount to the utmost. It will be a question of where the rich purse will go to the horse with the greatest speed, lasting power and courage and who is handled best in the closing stages of the contest.

It should be a thrilling race, and may the better horse win.

O'Hara on Own In Track Fight

PROVIDENCE, July 12—Beaten in his attempt to have today's meeting of the stockholders of the Narragansett Racing Association enjoined, Walter E. O'Hara announced he was going to fight on in his effort to regain control of Narragansett Race Track.

What legal recourse remained open was not clear. Judge Charles A. Walsh of Superior Court not only refused the injunction, but denied an application for appointment of a master in chancery to supervise the voting of proxies.

Judge Walsh said that the two inspectors supervising the proxies were attorneys of high character, were performing their duties under oath, and, in the court's opinion, would not be swayed from fulfillment of their duty.

Connie Happy At A. L. Win

PHILADELPHIA, July 12 (AP)—Connie Mack, recovering from a gall bladder attack, is feeling much better today. A restful night, coupled with the victory of the Americans in baseball's dream game, showed its good effects, Mrs. Mack said.

The old master of the Philadelphia Athletics was deeply interested in the game. He was not allowed to listen in, but from time to time he was told the score. A smile spread over his thin face.

The 76-year-old manager received a first-hand report of the game later from his own son, Roy, vice-president of the Athletics, who attended.

BOB FELLER, of the Cleveland Indians, is pictured in action by the magic eye camera as he halted National League attack in sixth inning of thrilling All-Star baseball game between the National and American Leagues at the Yankee Stadium. When Bob came to the mound, the bases were loaded. He "bore down" on the opposition, retired the side on a double play, and pitched scoreless ball from then on. The Americans won 3 to 1. Feller has already won 14 games this year. He looks like one of the greatest pitchers who ever put on a glove.

Inspired Sox Seek New Fields To Conquer

By JOE CASHMAN

The Red Sox go West tonight with pennant hopes high. Nobody on the club is permitted openly to talk about winning the championship as Joe Cronin is a bit suspicious, but way down deep in the heart of every player is the hope that the Sox will overtake the Yanks and be crowned American League champions.

A ball club that can turn the Yanks back five times in a row can accomplish anything Joe Cronin's miracle team is riding high, and it will not be awed by any of the opposition it will meet in the West.

The Sox will make their first stop at Cleveland where they open with a night game tomorrow night. Sun light or electric light the Sox insist they will smash through the defenses of the Indians and close in on the Yanks who will be battling the Tigers at Detroit.

Detroit has displayed improved strength, and baseball men figure the Sox have another chance to climb during the present series.

SOX AROUSE LEAGUE

American League managers refuse to go out on a limb and declare they have entered a "Stop the Yanks" movement, but it is well known that the startling success of the Sox in New York has given encouragement to other clubs.

American League teams were beginning to believe that the Yanks couldn't be beaten, and they were playing right down New York's alley.

It will be a different story from now on. Joe Cronin and his Sox have proved that the Yanks are just another ball club that can be knocked to the ground if one plays properly. This will mean that the Yanks will receive more serious opposition from now on.

You may look to see the Tigers, Indians, White Sox and Browns trying to emulate the victory efforts of the Sox against the Yanks.

The Sox will have better pitching than they have had for several years as they invade the West.

The return to form of Fritz Ostermueller has been sensational, while Dennis Galehouse has also proved he is ready to go the route.

FELLER, GORDON ALL-STAR HEROES

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—Having watched the American Leaguers (mostly New York Yankees) splatter the National Leaguers (principally Cincinnati Reds) in the seventh annual All-Star game at Yankee Stadium by a score of 3 to 1, the following thoughts arise and stay there:

1—That in Bobby Feller of the Cleveland Indians, who pitched the final three and two-thirds innings for the winners, baseball is looking at one of the greatest pitchers that ever gave a batter chilblains with his fast ball, and,

2—That in Young Joe (Flash) Gordon, the acrobatic rookie of the Yankees, there is a star performing today who can play second base as brilliantly, perhaps, as it ever has or ever will be played, and, finally,

3—That, otherwise, there still is no great difference between the two leagues, even though this was the fourth victory scored by the American Leaguers in the seven All-Star games that have been played for baseball charity.

"WE WANT MILLER"

It was a good game, as some 63,000 spectators agreed. But for an error by Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh star playing shortstop for the Nationals, the final count would have been 2 to 1, and the winning score would have been provided by Joe DiMaggio's home run that just reached the left-field stand in the fifth inning.

That is a bare margin of victory and the Nationals were not downcast, even though they had set their hearts on winning.

Feller and Gordon were the difference on this day and the American League [illegible].

Feller went in to pitch for the Americans in the sixth inning, when the battling National Leaguers had filled the bases with only one out, and Tommy Bridges was wobbling all over the place.

The youngster from Cleveland fired only one ball, and Vaughan smacked it into a double play, started by Gordon. Five National Leaguers batted in that inning, and Bridges and Feller pitched only six balls to them.

FELLER TERRIFIC

Feller went on to baffle the Nationals in the remaining three innings. They didn't have a chance against his fast ball.

It cut the plate with such speed that even George Magerkurth, the umpire who was calling them, turned sidewise and tried to shrink.

Johnnie Mize and Stan Hack, the last two batters to face Feller, were strikeout victims. If all pitchers had the Iowa youngster's smoke a .200 average would be exceptional.

AND GORDON! He made three terrific plays. In the sixth he knocked down a drive by Mel Ott with two aboard that cut off at least one run, and a few moments later started the double play that pulled the Americans out of their hole for the day.

His greatest exploit, however, was reserved for the eighth inning, when he made a running jump into short right and speared a line drive by Joe Medwick, nearly landing on his face as he did so.

Fans Acclaim Old-Time Stars At Fenway

By JOE CASHMAN

Old time baseball heroes gathered at Fenway Park early today for the Centennial game between veteran National Leaguers and American Leaguers, which was to start at 3 o'clock.

They schuddered at noontime as skies darkened and a storm threatened, but brightened considerably a few minutes later when skies cleared.

There were many pre game festivities, including a softball game featuring Lowell Thomas' Nine Old Men, including Stoneham and Rud and other celebrities. Mayor Maurice J. Tobin played for the "Boston Merry Go Rounds."

It was fun, but the fans weren't interested init. They came to see Old Cy Young, Eddie Collins, Harry Hooper, Home Run Baker, Tris Speaker, Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Johnny Evers and other former greats, and they cheered wildly as soon as they recognized their old favorites, heavier around the midriff than in former years.

But Joe Wood and Chief Bender appeared in the pink. So, too, did Walter Johnson.

Wood, of course, coaches the Yale varsity nine, and is always in condition.

Johnson and Bender, though starting back at the turn of the century, have kept their hand in the game until the past few years.

The famous million dollar outfield of the Red Sox of pennant days was to star for the American League old timers this afternoon. This combination of Duffy Lewis left field, Tris Speaker center field and Harry Hooper right field.

In the history of baseball it is doubtful if there ever was an outfield combination that equalled this one. It set a mark for batting, fielding and throwing efficiency that will stand for all time.

The American League infield is the one that brought fame to Connie Mack's Athletics. It will be composed of Stuffy McInnis at first base, Eddie Collins at second base, Jack Barry at shortstop and Home Run Baker at third base.

Bill Carrigan, who will manage the American League club, will don the mask, chest protector and big glove and go behind the bat to receive the offerings of Cy Young.

Frankie Frisch will be back in uniform for the National League team. So will such famous stars as Johnny Evers, Joe Cronin, Fred Henney, Charley Nichols and Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Ligaroti-Johnstown Race Planned by Bing

HOLLYWOOD, July 12 (AP)—Bing Crosby's Del Mar race track may have a super-special horse race this summer.

Crosby, owner with Ian Howard of Ligaroti, wired associates he had invited William Woodward to bring the Kentucky Derby winner, Johnstown, to Del Mar for a match race with Ligaroti provided the latter won the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap at Boston today.

MRS. SCOTT ELIMINATED

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 12 (AP)—Mrs. Betty Scott of Vergennes, a finalist in last year's Vermont women's golf championship, was eliminated by Miss W. H. Wilson of Burlington, 4 up, in opening match play. All the other favorites survived their initial test.

Jean Bauer Gains Cup Semifinals

EASTERN POINT, Conn., July 12 (AP)—Waging an up-hill fight, Jean Bauer of Providence, three times Griswold Cup winner, today opened a one-up victory over Mary Rose of Scranton, Pa., to enter the semi-finals of the Shenecossett women's invitation golf tournament.

Never better than even for the first 13 holes, Miss Bauer was two down going to the 14th, where she began her winning drive. She won the 14th with a four as she got down with one putt, then evened the match at the 15th, where her rival found a trap.

Miss Bauer went out front with a five at the 17th, where the Scranton girl sliced her drive into the rough and needed four to get on, and halved the 18th to end the match.

Miss Bauer had an 81 and Miss Fine had an 82 for 18 holes on a day which saw others turn in good scores, also.

Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg Leichner of Flushing, N. Y. had a 36, even men's par, for the first time as she won 2 and 1 from Janet Younker of White Plains, N. Y.

Helen Waterhouse of Providence, defending the Griswold trophy, fired a 40 on the out nine and routed Mrs. Julian Leonard of Boston, 6 and 5, while Mrs. Fred G. Davis of Providence went out in 41 and won 5 and 4 from Mary Jane Wilson of Providence.

QUARTER FINAL ROUND

Helen Waterhouse, Providence, defeated Mrs. Julian Leonard, Boston, 6 and 5.

Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg Leichner, Flushing, N. Y., eliminated Janet Younker, White Plains, N. Y., 2 and 1.

Mrs. Frederick G. Davis, Providence, won from Mary Jane Wilson, Providence, 5 and 4.

Jean Bauer, Providence, defeated Mary Fine, Scranton, Pa., one up.

New York Girls In Canobie Meet

New York, as well as New England will be represented Friday at the Canobie Lake pool at Salem, N. H., promising the most interesting meet the Boston Swimming Association has held since it started holding its annual affair at the New Hampshire summer play ground. The intersectional color was added this morning with the receipt of three entries from the W. S. A. of New York.

Lorraine Fischer, Marguerite and Victoria Hoole will be the New York delegation at the Canobie meet, Marguerite coming in quest of the national junior 220-yard freestyle championship, one of the features of the program. A year ago she placed second to Miss Fischer in the same event, and has high hopes of succeeding her clubmate.

In addition, Marguerite will compete in the 100-meter freestyle scratch, as will Miss Fischer. The latter will also be in the 100-meter breast stroke scratch. Victoria Hoole will seek honors in the 100 meter freestyle. Class B.

General Franco Tops Rabbit's Taunton Form

By THE RABBIT

TAUNTON, July 12—General Franco in the seventh race at the Taunton dog track tonight is my idea of a fine wagering proposition. This one likes to run on the outside and off its last race seems much the best of this pack. I expect to see him win at a fair price.

FIRST RACE—FUTURITY
(First Half Daily Double)
FLIGHT LEADER—JEWEL MARE—DOCTOR RUNDY

PP	Dog	Odds	Wt.	Owner
6	Flight Leader	3-1	64	Otto Wohlauf
7	Jewel Mare	4-1	59	Archie Spencer
1	Doctor Rundy	4-1	66	Ben Neal, Jr.
4	Mertsalo	5-1	65½	R. Smith
5	Mandy	5-1	64	Tom Cook
8	K. I. Whites	6-1	66	W. Lee Bryant
3	Pete Dooley	8-1	63	P. Harmon
2	Rex's Ann	8-1	59	M. J. Gavan

FLIGHT LEADER was by far the best in the event last time out with JEWEL MARE making a real bid for money. DOCTOR RUNDY looks like the best bet.

SECOND RACE—$1 UTILITY
(Second Half Daily Double)
TIPSY—IRVIN ANDREW—BALKUS

6	Tipsy	4-1	66 Paul Basone
8	Tryin Andrew	4-1	66½ M. T. Dubiel
3	Balkus	4-1	65 Tom Baird
4	Chimney Top	5-1	67 Jess Williams
1	Dainty Pothos	6-1	64 W. J. Gavan
5	Kas	6-1	64 Fred Street
7	Close Up	8-1	65½ Conrad Rhine
2	Ida Sparkle	8-1	60 G. Lippold, Jr.

TIPSY'S last wasn't to best and with a clean break it should make good here. IRVIN ANDREW could take it all with BALKUS in the money.

THIRD RACE—5-16 MILE
EVENTUAL LADDIE—FOURTH AVENUE LISALIE

6	Eventual Laddie	3-1	72 M. J. Gavan
1	Fourth Avenue	4-1	61½ John Hughestone
3	Lisalie	5-1	65½ Ernest Rhine
8	Dark Capture	5-1	65 C. A. Rhodes
7	Big Traffic	6-1	61½ F. L. Brents
5	Red Lin	6-1	59 Paul Basone
4	Boy-Ed	8-1	62½ Robert Bryant
2	Demure	8-1	60½ Oscar Dahlberg

EVENTUAL LADDIE dwelt in its last but a clean break here would mean a win with the lowered FOURTH AVENUE the one to fear. VISALIE is dangerous.

FOURTH RACE—$1 UTILITY
UNDERSTUDY—COLORED ALLZIE—TIP DAVIS

2	Understudy	3-1	66 Oscar Dahlberg
3	Clouded Aussie	4-1	61 Jack Adams
4	Tip Davis	4-1	62 Fred Street
1	Peacher	5-1	65 Neelands Kennel
7	Liquid Red	6-1	63 Robert Bryant
6	Nonty Melody	6-1	65 Tom Cook
5	Top Traffic	6-1	66 Frank Lane
8	Rex's Shadow	8-1	60 Pat Gavan

This pack is pretty close together with UNDERSTUDY, which has regained its health the chief threat. The other two could cause serious bother at the last.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE
ANDREW MEADOWS—ROWDY GOES—SPECKLED CRONY

5	Andrew Meadows	3-1	67 W. Lee Bryant
1	Rowdy Goer	4-1	66 Fred Street
4	Speckled Crony	4-1	66 Ben Neal, Jr.
3	Mister Andrew	5-1	64 Cedar Pt. Ken.
2	Reminiscence	6-1	67 Pat Gavan
8	Sunsmoke	6-1	67 Tom Baird
6	Mr. Kemp	8-1	65 Pat Cooney
7	Ben's Joy	8-1	63½ Clyde Rae

This is my sort of track. ANDREW MEADOWS figures to lead all the way in this number. Should he bobble at the start ROWDY GOER would take it all with SPECKLED CRONY dangerous.

SIXTH RACE—½ MILE
READY APPLIANS—BLACK MOON—MIDDY O

8	Ready Appliance	3-1	67 John Hughestone
6	Black Moon	4-1	64½ G. Lippold, Jr.
1	Brien O.	5-1	61 Cedar Pt. Ken.
5	Mandeville	5-1	62 Fred Palermo
3	Double Down	6-1	69 Frank Lane
2	Fame	6-1	65 Tom Baird
4	Trusty Traffic	8-1	57 F. L. Brents
7	Theism II	8-1	56 P. Harmon

READY APPLIANCE needs only to break and he is the class of this dash but should BLACK MOON get the rail he's dangerous with HELEN O. always a threat.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
GENERAL FRANCO—NITHER TO YON—PUDDYS

8	General Franco	4-1	70 George Berangon
6	Nither To Yon	4-1	65 Fred Palermo
4	Paddies	4-1	65 Cedar Pt. Ken.
3	Manton Calling	5-1	70 Pat Cooney
5	Virginia D.	5-1	65 Frank Lane
7	Cool Caress	6-1	58 C. A. Rhodes
2	Taunton Lass	6-1	66 O. & R. Kennel
1	Truly	8-1	61 Neelands Kennel

GENERAL FRANCO'S last was its best [illegible] of it here means the win. NITHER TO YON could be with PUDDYS, a last bracket, always a threat.

EIGHTH RACE—$1 UTILITY
PROPHECY—LEGAL COURT—DEAR CAREER

7	Prophecy	5-1	67 J. R. Hairo
1	Legal Court	4-1	67 P. Harmon
8	Dear Career	4-1	65 Tom Cook
4	Jim J.	5-1	67 John Hughestone
3	Lucky Tom	6-1	64 H. Rogers
6	Tim's Court	6-1	65 L. Kirkpatrick
2	Little Hazard	8-1	59 Neelands Kennel
5	Little Girlie Ray	8-1	76 J. L. Ayotte

PROPHECY should score here as the company is none too tough with LEGAL COURT the chief danger. DEAR CAREER moves up but could take it all.

NINTH RACE—5-16 MILE
CAVALIER CARESS—LITTLE GIANT—THAG

3	Cavalier Caress	4-1	65 C. A. Rhodes
1	Little Giant	4-1	74 J. E. Ayotte
2	Thag	5-1	66 P. Harmon
6	Miraculous	5-1	64 M. C. Sparano
4	Harbrander	6-1	67 Oscar Dahlberg
7	Carries Cutlet	6-1	74 O. & R. Kennel
8	Betsy	8-1	62 Fred Palermo
5	Wee Hikes	8-1	66 John Hughestone

CAVALIER CARESS' last was its best and a repetition of it here means the win.

TENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
PERNA—PLAYSIDE GOLDIE—ROUND-ABOUT

5	Perna	4-1	58½ W. Lee Bryant
6	Playside Goldie	4-1	53½ Clyde Rae
3	Roundabout	6-1	63 Cedar Pt. Ken.
4	Piddyes	6-1	62 C. A. Rhodes
1	Shagtown	6-1	60 Pat Gavan
7	Midnight Lily	6-1	60 Ted Lippold
8	Bob Up	8-1	70 Frank Lane
2	Traffic Pat	8-1	65 G. M. Rogers

PERNA needs only to break and get the rail around the first turn and win. PLAYSIDE GOLDIE could upset this plan and ROUNDABOUT might take it all.

BOSTON AMERICAN

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

JOHNNY KELLEY of Arlington, a B. A. A. Marathon winner, does not believe that an Indian has any particular advantage over a white man in the matter of distance running.

The recent successes scored by Tarzan Brown, Narragansett chieftain, have caused many keen observers of long distance running events to contend that Indians have more of what it takes for such events.

Regarding the Indian vs. the white man controversy, Kelley said:

"I don't know that the Indian has any advantage over the white runner. If a white athlete takes the pains to prepare himself properly and build up his endurance to its best point, I believe he can last through any race with any Indian who has trained similarly.

"I believe success is a matter of the individual's ability plus training rather than a matter of whether one is an Indian or a white man. Any contest to settle this argument would prove interesting."

Tom Longboat was the first great Indian runner whom I saw in action. Longboat was a B. A. A. Marathon winner, and later competed in professional races against Alf Shrubb, the Englishman, Dorando, great Italian star, and Johnny Hayes of New York.

Longboat had a fine stride and tremendous endurance. He preferred to compete outdoors rather than on the indoor tracks used for the professional races. This was natural as an athlete can get fresh air into his lungs competing outdoors, while he also has a better chance to use a long, looping stride. The corners on indoor tracks place a tremendous burden on long distance runners.

Who do you think make the better long distance runners, Indians or white men? Write your opinion to this column, and we shall be glad to publish it.

Stopping The Yanks

The Red Sox have proved that the Yanks can be stopped. It took Joe Cronin's courage to show the way to other American League managers. I believe now that Cronin has convinced other clubs that the Yanks are only human that a "Stop the Yanks" spirit will spread throughout the American League. If it does, the Red Sox can win the American League pennant.

JERSEY STREET FAN.

Good Road Team

The Sox have shown this year that they are a good road club, and so should continue their drive for the pennant against Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis. The Tigers and White Sox have been playing fine ball, but I think just now the Sox carry too much of a punch for any of their rivals. I believe improved pitching has also played a prominent part in the recent Red Sox success.

WALTER HERBERT, Lowell.

Yanks Miss Gehrig

The Yanks are now missing Lou Gehrig. The illness of the "Iron Horse" has deprived the club of a terrific batting punch. The Yanks used to have Lou and Babe, then Lou and Joe. Now Joe is without a top batting assistant.

T. G., Mattapan.

Random Shots at Target

I AM GOING to drop over to Suffolk Downs today to see if I can come up with the horse that will beat Chalkedon . . . You all know that I don't like to ride with the favorite in big races . . . I get my kick out of such events by trying to get a $2 ticket on a horse that will pay odds of from 6 to 1 to 8 to 1 if he wins . . . The old percentage is probably running against me, but there is also quite a bit of percentage running against favorites.

Lou Brouillard looks as if he is fit for his ten-round bout with Babe Verila of Cuba that will be staged at Portland tomorrow night . . . Melio Bettina and Billy Conn are ready for their 15-round tussle in the New York Garden tomorrow night . . . Bettina's title as world's light heavyweight champion will be at stake . . . Conn will probably go to the post a slight betting favorite . . . Billy is having difficulty getting down to 175 pounds which is the light heavyweight limit . . . This makes it appear as if Conn may eventually develop into a heavyweight . . . It is the opinion of Hype Igoe, famous New York boxing authority, that inside of two years Conn will win the heavyweight championship of the world from Joe Louis.

The 90,000 crowd that witnessed Len Harvey defeat Jock McAvoy in London is proof of the popularity of boxing in England . . . Jack Doyle, who was knocked out in a round by Jack Phillips, should quit boxing . . . Doyle was always more interested in becoming a singer than a boxer . . . Jimmy Braddock and Al McCoy are planning to go to England for bouts in the Fall . . . English promoters are dickering for the services of Lou Nova whom they would like to pit against Tommy Farr.

STORM HOLDS UP GOLF PLAY

By BILL GRIMES

TEDESCO C. C., July 12—For the first time in history, play was suspended in the state amateur golf championship here today when an electrical storm swept the North Shore with half the field playing in the second 18-hole qualifying round.

Although it was not raining, and the storm seemed some two miles away, President C. C. Patterson, mindful of the fatalities at Kansas City a year ago when lightning bolts struck the steel shafts of the players' clubs, sounded a siren at 11:30 a. m. and ordered all players to return to the clubhouse.

Play was to be resumed later in the day if the storm let up.

Although Martin and Adams stole the show yesterday with their par equalling 70's, Wilson and little Johnny Waloshyn, Walpole, rate some of the spotlight. Wilson put together a 35-38 for a 73 and Waloshyn posted a 35—39—74.

WALOSHYN WEEK-ENDER

Unlike Wilson, who can practise or play whenever the urge strikes him, Johnny Waloshyn, who is only 22 years old, is a weekend golfer. Johnny picked up his golf while caddying at the Walpole Country Club but because of his work after graduating from high school, he didn't have the time nor the inclination to play golf.

Johnny Waloshyn never won the state caddy or junior championship but for about three years he softened up the field for the ultimate winners by eliminating some of the most serious threats in the field.

Francis "Ancy" Doyle, Wachusett, who is still favored to be the medalist showed that he is made of the right stuff when he posted a 73, after taking a 6 on the short 7th hole. "Ancy" hasn't played any hole as poorly as that disastrous 7th.

He pushed his tee shot, popped his second into a trap, missed a shot in the hazard before reaching the green and then took two putts.

At the conclusion of today's 18 holes of medal play, the low 32 will be paired for match play which starts tomorrow morning.

Leonard Shows On Dilboy Card

Fistic bombardments are in store for amateur boxing fans when the third open air boxing show takes place at Dilboy Field, Somerville, tonight, with five classes of competition, the 118, 135, 147, 160 and 175—all open.

Johnny Leonard Taunton, rated the best 118-pounder in New England, will be heavily favored to walk off with top honor in that division. Nat Canata, Providence; Romeo Paris, Lawrence, and many other outstanding 135-pounders will make the lightweight division a hotly contested class.

Lou Vivolo, boasting a lengthy string of kayoes since the outdoor season was inaugurated a month ago, will meet more than his share of difficulties in the middleweight class.

KOCSIS OPPONENT OF DENNY SHUTE

POMONOK COUNTRY CLUB, FLUSHING, N. Y., July 12 (INS) — Ralph Guldahl, former National Open golf champion and among the favorites in the current National Professional championship, led a retreat to the sidelines as he and several other notables were blasted out of the tournament in two sudden death rounds at 18 holes.

After beating Clarence Owens by 4 and 3 in the first round, Guldahl was eliminated in the second round by Clarence Dozer, two up, with Jimm Thomson, Gene Sarazen, Walte Hagen, Harry Cooper, Jug McSpaden, Ky Laffoon, Ray Mangrun and Vicior Ghezzi among the outstanding performers who fell with the big Texan.

But still in the field were 16 survivors led by little Paul Runyan, the defending champion, who advanced into today's 36-hole competition by defeating Mortie Dutra, 3 and 1, and Frank Champ, 3 and 3.

RUNYAN PLAYS HOGAN

Runyan immediately brought himself face to face with trouble in play today, for his opponent will be little Ben Hogan in a match of pygmies, the latter having won from Steve Zappe, 7 and 6, and Abe Espinosa, 5 and 4.

Denny Shute, who like Runyan is among the favorites and seeking the title for the third time, beat Ted Luther, 1 up, and Leo Diegel, 2 and 1. Shute's opponent today is to be Emerick Kocsis, winner over John Gibson, 1 up, and Grezzi, 3 and 1.

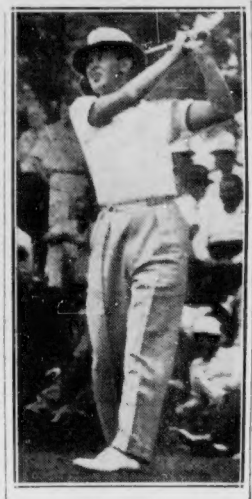
The remaining favorites, Byron Nelson, national open title holder, and Henry Picard came through and remained red hot choices to advance still farther. Nelson eliminated Chuck Garringer, 4 and 2, and Bill Francis, 3 and 1, while Picard advanced over Earl Martin, 6 and 4, and Joe Zarhardt, 2 up.

Others who advanced were Billy Burke, Dick Metz, Tom O'Connor, Rod Munday, Al Watrous, Dutch Harrison, Bruce Coltart, Horton Smith, and Johnny Revolta.

Besides the Runyan-Hogan and Kocsis-Shute matches, the others on today's program include Burke vs. Metz, O'Connor vs. Munday, Picard vs. Watrous, Harrison vs. Coltart, Dozer vs. Smith, and Revolta vs. Nelson.

In the other matches which saw the elimination of notables, Herman Barron beat Thomson, 2 up; Jack Ryan beat Sarazen, one up; Mike Turnesa beat Cooper, 2 and 1; Tony Manero beat Hager, 1 up, and Ken Tucker beat McSpaden, one up, all in the first round, while in the second round Smith beat Mangrum.

Scores Second Round: Paul Runyan defeated Frank Champ, 3 and 2; Ben Hogan defeated Abe Espinosa, 5 and 4; Billy Burke defeated Herman Barron, 2 and 1; Dick Metz defeated Al Brosch, 1 up; Tom O'Connor defeated Ky Laffoon, 2 up; Rod Munday defeated Jack Ryan, 2 up; Henry Picard defeated Joe Zarhardt, 3 up; Al Watrous defeated Ken Tucker, 3 and 2; Dutch Harrison defeated Johnny Farrell, 3 and 2; Bruce Coltart defeated Mike Turnesa, 1 up (21 holes); Clarence Dozer defeated Ralph Guldahl, 2 up; Horton Smith defeated Ray Mangrum, 3 and 2; Emerick Kocsis defeated Victor Ghezzi, 3 and 1; Denny Shute defeated Leo Diegel, 3 and 1; Byron Nelson defeated William Francis, 3 and 1; Johnny Revolta defeated Tony Manero, 3 and 2.



PAUL RUNYAN

Defending champion, who won first two matches handily.

Browns Take Cards Over Hurdles, 14-4

ST. LOUIS, July 12 (AP)—The lowly St. Louis Browns made it an American League day all the way around by shelling the Cardinals, 14 to 4, in a special exhibition game to decide the city championship.

Johnny Kramer went the route for the last place club, while his teammates were pounding Paul Dean, Bob Bowman and Clyde Shoun for 16 hits. Joe Glenn led the Browns' attack with two doubles, a home run and a single.

Austen Lake Says:

the disillusionment of seeing the old heroes as husks of their former selves is a trifle depressing.

* * *

Today's Youth Should See Them

THAT'S ONE SIDE! The other is the personal appeal that the Old Timers in today's Fenway game will have for the more recent generations, the fans who were lads in sanitary pants or lasses in pinafores when the heroes were fresh. To them the Speaker-Hooper-Lewis outfield and the Collins-McInnis-Barry-Baker $100,000 infield is something out of a wonderful past. They'll want to see them! Yonder fatherly elder in his stained uniform is the great Walter Johnson, the original fire-ball thrower whose speed made a five-ounce baseball look like a white blurr. Yonder is mackerel-jawed John Evers, the human buzz-saw of Tinker to Evers to Chance fame. And there is bandy-legged Honus Wagner, like an old circus lion. All are figures out of memory's album.

What are they doing now, these elder disciples of muscular miracle? Harry Hooper is postmaster of Capitola, Cal., after a disastrous experience with prune farming. Tris Speaker is a radiorator in Cleveland after dabbling as Boxing Commissioner and a member of the Ohio Liquor Commission. Cy Young is a clerk of court in Peoli, O., after a short session as greeter at a Boston hotel. Jack Barry runs an auto agency and filling station in Worcester between times of coaching Holy Cross.

* * *

Why Frank Frisch

BILL CARRIGAN IS A GENTLEMAN farmer and economic royalist who oversees investments for several Lewiston banks. Frank Baker is an Eastern Shore dirt farmer, as is also Walter Johnson. Johnny Evers is vice-president and office boss of the Albany, N. Y., ball club where his old infield side-kick, Rabbit Maranville, is field manager.

Stuffy McInnis coaches Norwich University. Horace Ford runs a munch-and-gargle parlor in Winchester. Grover Alexander is at leisure after a period with a Broadway flea-circus. Joe Wood coaches Yale where Joe, Jr., and Eddie Collins, secundus, were teammates this season. Fred Tenney is a successful Boston insurance broker and Charley Nichols operates a bowling emporium in Kansas City.

But why Frankie Frisch, last year manager of the Cardinals and present ether spouter for Boston baseball, is included among the Old Timers is a small mystery. For Frankie hasn't staled long enough to be in the moth-ball class. He could still dive and sprawl as well as some of the junior second anchers in the National League.

So that's the central part of today's panorama. The rest is the color, fanfare and militaristic fuss by the sponsoring Veterans of Foreign Wars. It's a worthy cause. The boys hope to make a few shillings toward the expense of the annual convention. Shower down friends!

SPORT INTERLUDES

Hartnett Erred On Eddie Miller | Bees Shortstop Left on Bench

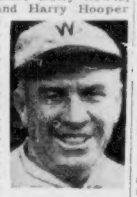
By BILL GRIMES

Baseball fans, particularly around this neck of the woods, are giving Leo "Gabby" Hartnett a thorough going over for not using Eddie Miller, the Bees' sensational shortstop, who is recognized as the best defensive player in either league, in yesterday's All-Star game.

Had the publicity on Miller been started about a month sooner, Eddie would have been the starting shortstop yesterday, instead of spending the entire afternoon holding down the National League bench . . . And, incidentally, Eddie would have been within his rights had he sounded off on Gabby after the game . . .

Hunreds of old-time baseball fans planned to welcome Duffy Lewis, Tris Speaker and Harry Hooper at Fenway Park today . . . Unquestionably, the Lewis, Speaker - Hooper combination comprised the greatest of all time outfields . . .



Tris Speaker

They were ball hawks par excellence, possessed unusually strong and accurate arms and Lewis and Speaker were .300 hitters and Hooper hit between .290 and the elite class . . . But, for the fact that he always played the sun field—and the sun glasses in his days were crude—Harry Hooper would have been a .300 batter.

Anytime an ex-caddy crashes the head line in a championship, golf enthusiasts are elated . . . Leo Martin and Teddy Adams, both of whom started the links careers toting golf bags, played sensational golf yesterday while carding 70s for the first round of the state amateur championship qualifications.

Young Adams stepped to the turn in 32, two under par and Leo came home in 34, which equaled the best in nine ever made at Tedesco . . . Tony Manero holds the competitive record at Tedesco, a 68, while Bobby Hood, Jr., and Don Ritchie are co-holders, with Leo Martin and Teddy Adams, of the amateur record for that course.

Standing on the ninth tee yesterday, Steve Palmer needed a par 5 for a 38 . . . He got off to a bad start when he hooked his drive but he still had a chance for his par after he had played two . . . But, then he shanked four shots in a row, going completely around one of the mounds and he had used up seven strokes by the time that he reached the green . . . Then, his putter went out of control and he took three stabs at his ball before it finally dropped into the cup . . . He posted a 10 for the hole . . .

Johnny Koslowski, who has been the outstanding all around athlete at Gov. Dummer Academy for two years, will enter Dartmouth in September . . . Johnny is a grocery clerk again this summer down at Manchester - By - The - Sea . . . He weighs 185 pounds and is in perfect condition . . . He'll be a welcome addition to the Dartmouth freshmen football, basket ball and baseball teams.

Young Dave Sullivan, a 15-year-old youngster from Blue Hill, is one of the most promising golfers in the state . . . With three holes to play yesterday, Dave needed pars for a 75 but he finished 7-4-6 for an even 80 . . . The boy was very nervous particularly at the home hole, where he took four to get down from front edge of the green. Take a jaunt out to some course and see young Dave Sullivan hit his shots . . . It's a real treat . . . After one lesson from Bert Nicolls, Judge Joseph W. Monahan has conquered his putting weakness.

Frank Janusas, Minute Man, who has been outstanding in the junior ranks for years, was 53 yesterday, due in no small measure to a 9 on the home hole . . . Freddie Wright and Dave Whiteside will team up for the New Bedford Four Ball Invitation . . . Joe Kelley and Ray Marad, George Wright, turned in fine rounds of 76 yesterday . . . Kelley deuced the 2d and 8th holes . . .

Apparently, some of the contestants are disregarding the rule pertaining to ball driven into the pond from the 11th tee at Tedesco . . . The rule is "tee up and play two" but three players dropped back of the pond, from where it isn't a difficult shot to get home . . . By dropping at the edge of the pond those players practically eliminated any chance of going overboard again.

Doggone Clever!—"Raffles," a terrier and a terror when he's locked up in a cleaning store, shows his mistresses, Doris and Barbara Hannon of Watertown, how he yelped into a telephone to bring police to his rescue. The dog, by accident or design, knocked over the phone, opening the connection. His yelps brought the cops.
